COMING TO HONDO.

Beginning his first Western tour,
Pierce Brooks, of Dallas, candidate for governor, on a platform calling for free license plates for automobiles and immediate payment of Old Age pensions, will speak in Hondo.

Brooks will make the swing in a sound-equipped, snow-swinging automobile, with a speaker's platform atop it. The speaker and his mobile platform have attracted wide attention and large crowds in East Texas.

Owners of small cars now pay out nearly 30 per cent of their car's value
in licenses, fees, taxes and other governmental costs, Brooks will tell the voters, and as a result often are deprived of the use of their autos when they need them most. Reducing license costs to a mere nominal sum for registration and inspection will be more than offset in revenue by increased sale of gasoline and oil, he has declared in recent speeches.

Brooks has adopted the slogan,
"Put the State on a Business Basis".
He advocates the establishment of a real estate and rehabilitation board to cooperate with local civic bodies to restore industrial prosperity. He urges tax reforms and the consolidation or elimination of many state bureaus and commissions.

His itinerary in the West includes,
Tuesday: Weatherford, Mineral Wells, Palo Pinto, Strawn, Ranger, Eastland and Breckenridge.

Wednesday: Albany, Cisco, Baird,
Abilene, Merkel and Sweetwater.

Thursday: Roscoe, Colorado, Big Spring, Stanton, Midland, Odessa and Pecos.

Hondo, Saturday, May 4th.

HONDO METHODIST CHURCH.

Shan M. Hull, Pastor.

The pastor has been away for a couple of Sundays, assisting Rev. J.
L. Bryant of Pearsall in a revival meeting, but is now at home and will occupy his pulpit at both the morning and evening services next Sunday.

Since this coming Sunday is our regular Communion Day, we therefore would be delighted to see a large attendance at both of the services, as Communion will be served at both the morning and evening services. We extend the Communion service into the evening service, so that those who were not present for the morning service might have the opportunity of taking Communion at the evening service.

We wish to remind our membership and friends that the second Sunday in May will be Mother's Day,
and we shall make a special effort to observe the day in a way that will be fitting for the special occasion. Shall we not all go to church Mother's Day, in memory of the best earthly friend that a boy or girl ever had?

We shall have more to say about Mother's Day this coming week.

If there are those who have not as yet returned their Easter Offering Missionary banks, we would be glad for them to send them or bring them to the church this coming Sunday.

"Come thou with us, we'll do thee good."

HONDO F. F. A. TO HOLD FATHER AND SON BANQUET.

The Hondo Chapter, Future Farmers of America, is to hold a father-and-son banquet on May 13th. All the fathers of the agricultural students will be guests of the Chapter.
A program to be given will include talks by various agriculture teachers and reports on chapter progress for the year.

Examinations for Certificate of Merit will be held in Dilley on May 9. These certificates are awarded in any branch of agriculture or club work in which the boys have shown merit. Those who will make the trip are: Bonnard Rothe, Ben Oefinger, Henry Bendele, Murrel Stiegler, Harold Weeber, Lester Saathoff, Eddie Leinweber, Marvin Koch, Fred Bader, John Zerr, Jerome Finger, Hugh Meyer, and Marvin Grell.

New officers were elected to take office in July. They were: Monroe Rucker, president; John Mummie, vice president; John Zerr, secretary; Marvin Grell, treasurer; Murrel Stiegler, reporter; Fred Bader, watch dog;
Bonnard Rothe, parliamentarian; J.
H. Rothe, historian; and Harry Freeman, yell leader.

ENTERTAIN FRIENDS.

On Sunday, April 26, 1936, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Schulte entertained with a grand lunch consisting of barbecue, potato salad, and pickles, while during the afternoon, cake, pies, doughnuts, coffee, and iced tea were served.

Those present were: Mr. and Mrs.
Henry Schulte, Sr., Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Saathoff, Mr. and Mrs. George Hartman, Mr. and Mrs. Mimke
Wiemers and family, Mr. and Mrs.
Alfred Schulte and family, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Schulte and family, Mr.
and Mrs. Robert Schulte and family,
Mr. and Mrs. Otto Wiemers and family, and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Schulte, Jr., and family.

The afternoon was whiling away in conversation and card playing. Everyone present enjoyed the day immensely.

SENIORS HAVE CLASS PLAY.

A large group of students took part in the activities incident to the Senior class play of Hondo High School last Friday night at the school auditorium. Included in the cast of the comedy-romance, "It Runs In The Family", were Hugo Schwerts, Fern Ulbrich, Hugh Meyer, Harvey Ren-
ken, Evelyn Barnes, Marvin Koch, Jean McCall, Orenceh Fly, and Anna Laura Welhausen. The casting of parts was made by competitive tryouts, and as a result the talent displayed by the Senior actors was of the best amateur standing. Expert direction was given by Miss Jacqueline Adams, with the assistance of Miss Lucy Richards, technical director.

Other Seniors having a large share in successfully and smoothly putting on the play were: Kyie Muennink, business manager; Marvin Leinweber, assistant business manager; Benny Oefinger, stage manager; Lela Grace Reilly, property manager; Wilma Bar-kuloo, assistant property manager;
Henry Bendele, lights; Lillian Harrian, script reader; Florence Zuberbueler, costumes; Ethelyn Ney, make-up. The program committee was composed of Hertha Weeber, Harold Weeber, Milton Marie Merritt and Roy Bohlen. Publicity committee included Blanche Clements, Mary Kate Huesser, Earline Watson.

Ushers serving at the play were Marvin Leinweber, Olen Koch, Harold Weeber and Roy Bohlen, and they had a record crowd for whom to find places.

Preceding the play, Sis Merritt's School of Dance was presented as follows:

The Baby Dolls: Fay Jean Bedell, waltz clog; Barbara Lou Vaughan, jazz tap; Harriett Goodlowe, petite tap; Jean Goodlowe, doll tap; Katheryn Brucks, soldier tap; Mary Ann Zinsmeyer, petite tap; "Doodle"
Crow, spanish dance.

Others were: Elmo Pope, dude tap;
Susie Muennink, jazz toe; sailor
dance, Sara Maude Cameron, Pat Kollman, Poopie Hollmig, Mary
Lynn, Laura Ann Muennink, Willie
Jean Nester, Anna Louise Wurzbach; Laura Lee Leinweber, toe ballet.

Added attractions between the first and second acts were a rhythm
tap dance by Sis Merritt; an acrobatic dance by Peggy Lou Waldrup; and a staircase dance, featuring Mary Ann Noonan, Susie Muennink, Laura Lee Leinweber, Judy Lacy, Bonnie
Cameron, Georgia Mae Muennink, Rose Marie Finger, Jean Worden and Alma Nester.

JAMES ASBURY POWELL DEAD.

After an illness of some six months duration, death came to relieve James Asbury Powell of his pain and suffering at 5:30 o'clock A. M., Sunday, April 26, 1936. His remains were buried in the new cemetery
Monday afternoon, after a funeral service at the Horder funeral chapel, conducted in his usual touching and consoling manner by Rev. R. W. Merritt.

The deceased was born in DeWitt County on February 21, 1859, and had, therefore, reached the age of 77 years, two months and 5 days at the time of his demise. He was never married and his nearest surviving relative is a sister, the last of several brothers and sisters, Mrs. Ellie B.
Schneider. Several nieces and nephews also survive.

Mr. Powell came to Hondo with another sister some fifteen or more years ago. The sister preceded him in death by several years. For a number of years, he served as night
watchman at Hondo and was an efficient and attentive servant. At one time he captured a transient in the act of burglarizing a business
place in town and landed him in jail singlehanded and alone. The culprit received a two-year sentence in the Texas penitentiary. Tiring of night duty, he resigned and was elected constable of this precinct.

A quiet, unassuming man, trustworthy, reliable and energetic, he had the respect of all who knew him. All share the sorrow of his aged sister and other relatives in his passing.

ST. PAUL'S LUTHERAN CHURCH.

The sixth annual convention of the Texas District of the American Lutheran Church in session at Yorktown, Texas, April 22-26, surpassed all other conventions in point of attendance. There were 225 pastors and delegates present representing 30,000 Lutheran communicants in the State of Texas and Louisiana.
Rev. Leibfarth and Mr. Felix Batot officially represented St. Paul's Church in Hondo at the convention,
the former serving on the Committee of Christian Elementary Education.
President E. A. Sagebiel of Seguin presided at the sessions.

The chairman welcomed the general president, Dr. C. C. Hein of Columbus, Ohio, and the Rev. H. F.
Schuh, Director of Stewardship and Finance.

Of general interest was the election of president. Rev. E. A. Sagebiel was re-elected on the first ballot over six other nominees for a term of five years.

Among the visitors from other Lutheran bodies was the Rev. A. Nelson of Dallas, of the Norwegian Lutheran Church, who spoke enthusiastically on the Lutheran Exhibit for the Centennial. He urged the convention to bear in mind that June 22-27 has been designated Lutheran Week.

Elementary Christian Education
was a matter duly considered. No doubt, as was emphasized, the soundness of the Christianity of the future
largely depends upon the educational program of the Church today. This convention took the first decisive steps in favoring and in making Texas Lutheran College a senior college.

One of the most impressive services was one held on Thursday night
during which Dr. C. C. Hein set forth in a masterful sermon the requirements of "A Pastor After God's Heart".

The speakers were Prof. E. J.
Braulick now of Wartburg Senior College at Waverly, Iowa, and formerly of Texas Lutheran College, Seguin. Rev. H. F. Schuh delivered the sermon on Friday evening with a large audience in attendance.

A special service commemorating the 50th anniversary of the ordination of Rev. G. Langner of Knippa, Texas, was held. Rev. Langner had been ordained in the Lutheran Church at Yorktown on May 17, 1886.

An announcement of importance to all was the fact that the next biennial convention of the American Lutheran Church will be held in San Antonio on Oct. 4-11 of this year.

The officers of the District are:
Prof. E. A. Sagebiel; first vice-pres., Rev. Vic. Albert, Galveston; second vice-pres., Rev. M. J. Schwarz, Mason; secretary, Rev. C. N. Roth of Winters, and Rev. F. A. Bracher, Fredericksburg.

Services will be held as usual at St. Paul's on Sunday, May 3, at 10:30 in the English language. Sunday school and Bible classes at 2:00.

At the regular morning service
next Sunday the delegate to the convention at Yorktown, Mr. Felix Bat-ot, will give a report to the congregation. This is of interest to every member of the church. Come!

The Ladies' Aid Society will meet Wed., May 6, at 2:30 at the home of Mrs. Felix Hollmig, Hondo.

The Senior Luther League will meet Thursday night, May 7, at 8 P.
M.

Choir rehearsal on Wednesday night at 8:00 o'clock.

TO POISON COTTON PESTS.

Clyde Hollaway, gin man and farmer, thinks there will be at least a ten per cent increase in cotton acreage in the Hondo section this year. He and his brothers themselves have planted 150 acres.

Mr. Hollaway is convinced that it is not only possible to raise cotton profitably by systematically poisoning the insects but that it cannot be successfully grown in competition with flea-hoppers, boll-weevils and army worms without it.

Accordingly he has purchased a Farmall Dusting machine for the purpose of waging a systematic war on these pests. He says that it has an extensive coverage and under favorable conditions should take care of the needs of a large acreage.

QUIHI NOTES.

And his mother took him a wife out of the land of Egypt. Gen. 21, 21.

"Here Comes the Bride" and somewhere we hear the echo of the romantic melody: "I Love Thee Truly" sung with all the rapturous joy of some one who pretends to know all about it. But the chant loses its charming and convincing element when sung in quick succession to the same party—with another mate,
three, four times, as seems to become fashionable in higher or lower society. Sometimes "it's a long way to"
not only to Tipperary, but also to the altar on the wedding-day; more often it's around the corner when the "teens" are barely approached. Not infrequently it's a solid comradeship, tried and true, till the anniversary
bells ring out the glad news, twice,
twice, even thrice, between quarter centuries; more often, nowadays, the "truly" is thrown to the dogs before the bridal wreaths have lost their fragrance. "How come?" Hagar

made the choice for her son, from a tribal stock that she knew, and, let us assume, with a mother's instinct or divination for what she really considered essential to a happy union,
fully absorbed in the future of her boy and not her own, primarily,
knowing the character and affinities or inclinations of the boy better than anyone else and certainly not totally in the dark, nay, rather wide-awake, about the make-up of the damsel in question, detecting things that a happy-go-lucky youth wrapped in his romantic fling, is apt to overlook or undervalue, and the final word was certainly not given without a serious consultation with the bridegroom-to-be, and, again our assumption, fully conscious of the responsibility of her action. Such mothers have not died out today,
even if Hagar does not make the grade. How many mothers, elders in general, are consulted today in these matters? How many are advised of the nuptials after they already have become ancient and unhappy history? Must love be blind and without reason? No doubt, here is one of the principal causes why those divorce-mills are more or less going the bride.

It was a day like many others, but "Mother Neumann" had her birthday for the 87th time and did not intend to make much ado about it, modest
as she has been during her long life.
But we did not let the day pass unnoticed, and others should have followed suit, since the shadows are growing longer with her and her strength is on the decline, though she is mentally still wide awake and a regular attendant at services. We commend the balance of her life into the keeping of Him Who has kept and blessed her beyond her merit
and expectations, as she gratefully acknowledges.

Ever so often things happen and take a turn one way or another, before we are advised of it. So we found Mrs. Geo. Heyen lately recuperated from a bad fall that might have turned out more disastrously.
But we were mighty glad to see her regaining her strength.

And Mrs. W. Grell we found in the hospital again. Yes, she was of good cheer and hard trying to find herself
into the tribulations that the Lord
sometimes connects with young motherhood. May He brush the clouds away and restore health and happiness in full.

Announcements for May the 3rd:
German service at 10; Sunday school
in every department at 9; English service at 7:45. He is thy Lord and worship thou Him. Ps. 45: 11.

CARD PARTY.

The Children of Mary Sodality of St. John's Church sponsored a card and bunco party at St. John's School Sunday afternoon, April 26, at which time they awarded prizes to the following winners: bridge, Mr. and Mrs.
Jacob Reilly; high five, Miss Ethelyn
Ney and Mr. Robert Koch; rook, Miss Sarah Robinson and James Lawrence Weyand; bunco, Alice Graff and Henry Martin Finger. Entrance
prizes went to Bonnie Jack Cameron, Edmund Ney, Ethelyn Ney, Oscar Batot and Miss Bertha Sauter. The Medina Hospital won the handmade quilt.

Following the games the hostesses served refreshments of iced tea and cake.

LADIES' BRIDGE CLUB.

Mrs. F. H. Schwerts entertained
the members of the Ladies' Bridge Club and several guests last Thursday afternoon. Her home was decorated with an abundance of fragrant roses. Trophies were awarded Mrs.
Fletcher Davis for high score, Mrs.
O. B. Taylor for cut, and Mrs. Louis Grube for guest. The hostess then served refreshments of molded fruit salad, saltines, white cake, and iced
tea to the following: Mesdames L. J.
Brucks, Fletcher Davis, Volney Boon,
J. M. Finger, Louis Grube, L. E.
Heath, Robert Kollman, W. O. Rothe,
Alice Reinhardt, Earl Starnes, and O.
B. Taylor.

Uncommon Sense

There used to be in my school reader an old story of General Washington's encounter with a non-commissioned officer watching a squad of private soldiers at work.

He was a little fussy man, seated on a stone fence and calling out orders to the soldiers.

It was needful to get the road repaired as soon as possible for troops were soon to pass that way. If the road was not in shape to be used safely by the artillery and cavalry the patriots might lose the opportunity to meet the enemy at the time specified by the high command.

General Washington rode up, sized up the situation, and spoke to the pompous non-com, inquiring why he did not take off his coat and help out with the work himself.

The corporal poked one of the soldiers with a stick, and then turned on the general, whom he did not recognize.

"Sir," he said, haughtily, "It is not for me to do such work. I am a corporal."

General Washington thereupon shed his coat, and picking up a spade went to work. Being a powerful man he was of great assistance and the job was soon done.

The corporal glanced at him negligently, and then feeling that something ought to be said, thanked him for his assistance and inquired his name.

"Washington," said the general, quietly.

Looking more keenly at the visitor, the little fellow fell back, and probably would have fallen on his face had not the commander of the army stopped him.

"You need not apologize," added the general. "Only the next time work is to be done by your squad, bear a hand. It will help things along."

It was characteristic of Washington, as it is among very many great men, though not all of them, by a long shot, that he did not dwell on his own importance.

His job was the winning of the war. He lacked men and money. It was difficult, both to retreat when necessary or to advance when the opportunity offered.

In his later life Washington was a dignified private citizen. But he never was afraid that his dignity would be lowered by playing a man's part when the need arose.

If nothing excites you or interests you particularly—outside of a fire or a circus parade or an accident, you had better be on your guard.

Indifference

Indifference was a curse long before Mr. Wordsworth wrote about the peasant to whom a primrose by the river's brim was just a flower.

If you can go through this life without getting excited now and then, you are in a bad way.

You have eyes which ought to see, and ears which ought to hear and a mind which ought to think.

Employ these gifts only in the quest of bread and butter, and they will not be of much use to you.

This life ought to be profoundly intriguing, and now and then highly enjoyable.

Get all you can out of it while you are here.

Meet as many intelligent people as you can. See every big show that is to be seen, from a shower of meteors in the sky down to a circus parade.

Read every good book which you have time to read. If you put in enough time in reading, that will mean a great many books.

Read books that will teach you something, and which will enrich your life.

Keep informed about what is going on in the world by reading newspapers, which are a daily record of present-day progress.

Travel if you can. If you can't, read books about travel.

If you can get as excited about a new and useful scientific discovery as you do about a major football match, you are in a fair way to mental advancement.

Look around you at the mechanical miracles of the time, like airplanes and radio and motor cars and railroad trains which move a hundred miles an hour.

There is more to be got out of life now than there has been in the whole history of the world.

There is more to see, more to enjoy, more to ponder over, more that is interesting and amusing.

I often think how excited Benjamin Franklin would be if he could come back to the earth and see the vast electrical development that followed his discovery that the lightning that flashed through the sky has been harnessed to billions of dollars' worth of productive machinery.

Don't be deaf and blind as you go through life.

Keep informed; keep awake. Read and observe.

Perhaps you will return to earth in another form some time. But that is merely speculative.

Dainty Crocheted Collars and Jabots That Win Recognition for Any Dress

Pattern 1136

High time to be thinking up fresh accessory notes for spring wardrobe, isn't it? Then what better than these airy, lacy collars and dainty jabot for giving last year's frock a "lift" and changing this year's so it wins recognition! There's an open front collar in a square mesh design, a triangular collar that closes

Sweep rugs the way of the pile. Brushing against the grain tends to brush dust in instead of out.

Paint stains that are dry and old may be removed from cotton or woolen goods with chloroform. First cover amply with olive oil.

The tough skin that forms on top of a cornstarch pudding may be prevented if a piece of oiled paper is placed over pudding when set away to cool.

Paper baking cups make excellent caps for milk bottles. Press edges down firmly to fit mouth of bottle.

If the table silver is placed in hot soapsuds immediately after being used, and dried with a soft, clean cloth, much of the work of polishing will be saved.

Purchase seldom used spices in small packages, as it is more economical since spices lose some of their flavor when exposed to the air.

Wood ashes make an excellent fertilizer for shrubbery and rose bushes, also for dahlias, peonies and delphinium. Scatter ashes over soil. It makes it sweet and has a tendency to loosen it.

When you are basting roast beef, a tablespoon of brown or white sugar added to the gravy improves the flavor and color.

Powdered borax added to the water when washing fine white flannels helps to keep them soft.

A simple Russian dressing is made by adding two tablespoons of chili sauce and two tablespoons of finely chopped green peppers to one cup of mayonnaise.

INVENTS NEW STOVE THAT MAKES OWN GAS

W. C. Coleman, Noted Inventor Makes It Possible for Every Home Everywhere to Enjoy Modern Gas Cooking Service at Low Cost

Housewives everywhere are enthusiastic in their praise of a new stove that makes its own gas and brings modern gas cooking service at low cost to homes anywhere. W. C. Coleman, noted inventor and pioneer manufacturer of gas-pressure appliances, regards this stove as his crowning achievement.

The new Coleman Range makes its own gas from ordinary lead-free gasoline. Lights instantly, like gas. The flame from its fuel-saving Band-A-Bu Burners is hotter than natural gas and is easily adjusted for fast cooking or slow simmering. Its low fuel consumption makes it cheaper to use than coal, wood or kerosene.

The Coleman Range has a spacious insulated oven and drawer-type broiler. An independently controlled burner provides any heat desired for baking or broiling.

Climaxing his achievement, Mr. Coleman endowed the Coleman Safety Range with gracious beauty, style and color.

Hats to Match Top Juvenile Coats

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

GRANTED that mother and big sister are looking too chic and charming for words this spring. In their new spic and span stylish tailors or their bolero costumes, if not a redingote outfit that contrasts print with plain, to which there has been added accessories utterly feminine and seductive as accessories must be that would go high-style this season.

However, we are not saying that voguishly attired adults are the whole show, not when a bevy of stylishly arrayed youngsters join the procession. Then does competition become keen and it is the tiny tots in their new spring outfits that will be getting the big applause, we venture to say, be their elders ever so beguilingly garbed. Which they should for children's fashions are as cunning and intriguing as fancy dare picture this season.

As a fashion "first" for spring it is the little coat-and-hat ensemble that is taking precedent at the immediate moment. It adds zest to the mode that children's coats are unusually versatile this season in the matter of styling. Then, too, a particularly wide choice of materials is offered. Tweeds in delectable colorings, camel's hair weaves, navy twills, novelty wool plaids and serge are all-important in the list of juvenile coatings.

Close attention is being paid to tailoring and styling, with the English trend dominating. Inverted pleats, crisp collars, velvet pipings as well as insets in tailored collars are high style details to consider. Most important to remember is that fashion decrees that every wee coat or suit is to be complemented by a matching hat.

While grown-ups are going in for daring color to the limit, high colors are not so much in the children's wear picture. As a matter of fact, it is the medium tones that are most generally in use this season. Pastels are also definitely favored in aqua, dusty and skipper blue in the order named. Many all-white coats will be worn.

Full length coats are more popular than the short jackets, although the ever beloved reefer type jacket of navy flannel continues to hold its own. The trio of models pictured were selected for illustration from among a collection of little folk's fashions displayed at a preview style event recently held at the Merchandise Mart in Chicago.

The clever little coat to the left is one of the new and very much admired Princess Elizabeth types. It carries that convincing air of distinction such as every fashion-alert mother covets for her child. Tweed in the popular dusty rose shade fashions it. Cunningly flared lines, the double breast button fastening, and the deftly tailored details of collar, cuffs and pockets are all significant style items. The collar of natural linen is detachable.

The little girl walking hand-in-hand so chummily with her companion has on a very attractive long reefer coat in navy blue. White metal buttons and a white hand-embroidered lingerie collar add chic finishing touches. The perky matching hat is of cloth identical with that of the coat.

The adorable child in the foreground has on a coat of skipper blue novelty weave wool with the Princess Elizabeth lines given to it such as are regarded as exceedingly smart for the younger set this spring. Her matching Scotch cap repeats the trim of blue plaid silk used on the coat.

WITH A VEIL

A bit of straw, a brim of closely stitched net, a full-blown rose and a fragile, frivolous, fluttering veil and presto! The milliner evolves as seductive a little cocktail hat as the world ever gazed upon. As here pictured this intriguing headpiece is posed by Helen Chandler who wears it in her newest play. It carries a highly important style message in the tight brim that frames the head, namely, the use of many layers of net closely stitched. Milliners are making many wide-brimmed hats as well as turbans and toques of stitched net this season.

Bowknot Motif

You can tie yourself in knots, fashionably speaking, this spring. Chanel sponsors the bowknot, and the new jewelry proves just how smart they look on a costume. Hinge bracelets carved in a bow have bright metal knots for contrast. The clip pairs carry out the same motif in little half bows with the same metal knots. They come in bright green, red, blue, white and black.

New Gloves

Don't put on the gloves for the first time when in a hurry. Even if you do get them on without splitting they will never fit so well as when they are carefully put on, stretching the kid gently to conform with the lines of the hands. If this is done the first time, all other times will be easy.

MULTI-DUTY GARB URGED FOR SPRING

There's a lot of talk these days about the "basic wardrobe," which is a good idea for the spring budgeteer.

The idea is to select the spring suit, coat and printed frocks in one color theme, to be worn with interchangeable accessories. Suppose, for instance, you start with one of the smart new tan-tailored suits with black jacket and striped skirt. With it, if you shop wisely, you will get an extra skirt to match the jacket.

Then you should choose a topcoat in a tailored style, also black, which may be worn over the suit or with a printed silk frock.

Your printed silks should be bright, gay and simply made, so that you may wear various frilly lingerie accents with them, changing their mood with the jabot or collar you select. With these for a foundation, you may achieve endless variety by choice of contrasting accessories.

Parasols and Fans Give Frivolous Touch to Garb

Parasols add a frivolous touch to many summer outfits. In bright printed cottons they appear with beach costumes and in polka-dotted silks they accompany summer suits. Some of them have long crook handles. Folding fans made of field flowers, tulips or orchids and flat oval lacquer fans, only a little larger than a hand, add a glamorous air to evening costumes.

TALL TALES

FRANK E. HAGAN and ELMO SCOTT WATSON

Steel Drivin' Man

HOEL S. BISHOP, who knows the history of the Chesapeake and Ohio railroad backward as well as forward, and vice versa, has often heard the old-timers tell about the difficulties they had in driving a tunnel through Cruze mountain. Among the negro laborers they hired was a young fellow named John Henry, a likely lad only seven or eight feet tall.

Right away they discovered that John Henry was a mighty good hammer man, even though he hadn't got his growth yet. He was so fast with his 12-pound hammer that he wore out its handle every nine minutes. He always had to have a boy standing by with a pail of ice water so he could keep the hammer from melting.

The result of this was that the C. and O. had to hire a gang of Tony Beaver's lumberjacks to log off the whole state of West Virginia in order to provide John Henry with enough hammer handles to keep him busy. Also they had to make the Potomac river run backwards so there'd be enough water on hand to keep his hammer cool.

Just about the time John Henry began to wear out a handle every six and three-quarter minutes, a fellow showed up with a steam-driven drill and challenged John Henry to a drilling contest. "Boss man, how many days stah you-all want so's I won't ketch up with yu' too soon?" asked John Henry. The steam drill man said they'd start at the same time, so at it they went. And, as everybody in the South knows, John Henry beat dat steam drill down.

Rock was high, po' John was low. Well, he laid down his hammah an' he died.

Laid down his hammah an' he died. It was too bad that the contest resulted fatally for the victor. If John Henry had ever grown up to be a full-size man, he might have hung up some real records as a steel drivin' man.

The Good Ship "Wobble"

THE first stories about the good ship "Wobble" were written by Frank Ward O'Malley and printed in the New York Sun, but other newspaper men have added details to its history. It was "O'Malley of the Sun," however, who first interviewed its master, Capt. Heinie Hassenpfeffer, and discovered that he wasn't quite sane. Captain Heinie had been a second story man in New York. When he sought new fields for his talents in Africa and found that the houses there were only one story high, the disappointment unbalanced his mind.

For that matter, his ship was a bit unbalanced also. It had only one paddle-wheel and that was mounted on the starboard side. So when the "Wobble" started out on a voyage with its cargo of subways and artesian wells, it just steamed around and around in a circle and never got anywhere.

To correct this defect Captain Heinie junked the engine and paddle-wheel, installed masts and sails and set out across the Atlantic. Four and a half days out, the ship ran into what seemed to be a dense black cloud. But the captain soon found that it was a flock of mosquitoes. By the time the "Wobble" had passed through them, the insects had eaten off every scrap of sail and tarred rope from the ship.

For a month the ship drifted with the tides. Off the coast of South America it again ran into a cloud of mosquitoes. By a queer coincidence it was the very same flock that had stripped the ship. Captain Heinie knew they were the same because every mosquito wore a pair of canvas overalls, made from his sails, held up by tarred rope suspenders!

A Shout for Bellow

AROUND Horse Cave, Kentucky, the natives will tell you somewhat proudly that you'll never be able to get the best of Herman Bellow. Herman's knowledge came from a study of nature in the numerous caverns of his neighborhood.

Once an Englishman visited Horse Cave, so the story goes, and engaged in argument with Herman. The result was a bet, the loser to be the man who couldn't answer his own question.

Said Herman: "Why is it a wood-chuck leaves no dirt when he digs a hole?"

"That's your question," retorted the Englishman.

"Because he starts to dig the hole at the bottom instead of at the top," replied Herman proudly.

"But how does he get to the bottom?" the Briton wanted to know.

"That's your question!" cracked Herman Bellow.

The "Bad Lands"

"Bad Lands" is the name given in the western part of the United States to certain sterile regions. They are characterized by an almost entire absence of vegetation, and by the labyrinth of fantastic forms into which the soft strata of clays, sands and gravels have been carved through the action of wind and water. The best examples are found east of the Black Hills in South Dakota, though similar formations occur in Wyoming, Colorado, Arizona, New Mexico and Texas.

No Need to Suffer "Morning Sickness"

"Morning sickness"—is caused by an acid condition. To avoid it, acid must be offset by alkalis—such as magnesia.

Why Physicians Recommend Milnesia Wafers

These mint-flavored, candy-like wafers are pure milk of magnesia in solid form—the most pleasant way to take it. Each wafer is approximately equal to a full adult dose of liquid milk of magnesia. Chewed thoroughly, then swallowed, they correct acidity in the mouth and throughout the digestive system and insure quick, complete elimination of the waste matters that cause gas, headaches, bloated feelings and a dozen other discomforts.

Milnesia Wafers come in bottles of 20 and 48, at 35c and 60c respectively, and in convenient tins for your handbag containing 12 at 20c. Each wafer is approximately one adult dose of milk of magnesia. All good drug stores sell and recommend them.

MEDINA COUNTY FARMERS MAKE BIG INTEREST SAVING.

Refinancing debts through the Farm Credit Administration has saved Medina County farmers more than $17,200 a year on interest alone, according to figures from the central office of the Farm Credit Administration in Washington.

Over $729,000 of farm debts with interest rates that averaged 7.0 per cent a year have been refinanced with long-term mortgage loans carrying interest rates of 5 per cent a year or less.

The figures show that the local National Farm Loan Association has been a big factor in making these long-term mortgages available at low interest rates. The Association guarantees loans to the Federal land bank.

From May 1933, when the Farm Credit Administration was organized, to the end of last year, 170 Medina County farmers obtained $697,000 for the specific purpose of refinancing old debts.

The Federal Land Bank made 89 first mortgage loans and the Land Bank Commissioner 153 loans. Many of the Commissioner's loans were made on second mortgage security to farmers who also obtained first mortgage loans. Most land bank loans are endorsed by associations and advanced from funds obtained by selling farm loan bonds. The Commissioner lends from funds provided by the Federal Government.

As in the past, the Federal land banks are making loans only on first mortgage security, lending up to about one-half of the appraised normal value of the farm property. The Commissioner lends on second as well as first mortgage security in amounts up to 75 per cent of the value. The largest amount of a Commissioner loan to one farmer is $7,500.

An act of Congress last summer temporarily reduced interest rates on all Federal land bank loans—old and new. Where land bank loans are made through National Farm Loan Associations, the rate is only 3 1-2 per cent for all interest payable in the year ending June 30, 1936, and 4 per cent a year in the two years following. This temporary reduction of interest rates on all Federal land bank loans is paid for by the Federal Government, which reimburses the banks for what otherwise would be a loss to them.

Due to favorable investment market conditions when the Federal land banks sold bonds recently, the banks can offer new loans, at present, at the interest rate of 4 per cent a year—the lowest at which they have ever lent money.

The statement from the Farm Credit Administration points out that a farmer who gets a Federal land bank loan through the local National Farm Loan Association while the 4 per cent interest rate lasts will not have to pay a higher rate during the entire term of the loan, which may be made for a period as long as 30-odd years. Farmers who are paying higher interest rates on short-term farm mortgages, or other accumulated debts, may find it advantageous to refinance with a long-term loan while investment market conditions remain favorable, the statement adds.

Baseball fans are looking forward to an interesting ball game between the Hondo Bronchos and Frenchy's Cats, a challenging team from San Antonio, at three o'clock Sunday afternoon. The game will be played on College Square.

Mrs. E. M. Wilburn who came out from San Antonio Saturday on account of the serious illness of her uncle, the late James A. Powell, returned home yesterday after having spent the interim with her mother, Mrs. Ellie B. Schneider.

The names of D. W. Scott of D'Hanis and Fred Smith of Hondo were called for the $100 and $80 accounts, respectively, at the Colonial Theatre last bank night. As they were not present the accounts were automatically increased to $200.

Station KABC will carry the play-by-play broadcast of all out-of-town games of the San Antonio team this year. This is in accordance with a five-year custom. "Bollivar", the famed Sports announcer, will, as usual, be at the microphone. The next out-of-town game will be May 13th.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon McCarley have had as week-end guests recently, Prof. Noel Reed from Victoria, Prof. and Mrs. Dick Jones of Karnes City, and Miss Viola Wright, Spanish teacher in the Jourdan schools. All of the above mentioned are ex-students of A. & I. College, Kingsville.

Mr. R. L. Jennings returned the first of the week from a visit to Dallas and other prominent Texas cities where he studied the new and improved methods and equipment of motion picture theatres and also of tailor shops, with a view to keeping in step with progress in his business here.

In the regional meet for district 6 of the Interscholastic League, held in San Marcos last Friday and Saturday, Miss Anna Laura Welhausen, Senior Hondo High School student, won second place in the Ready Writers Department. Miss Welhausen won first places in both the Medina County Meet and the District Meet at Uvalde.

Our local architect, Joseph Palte, has been awarded the work of drawing plans for another structure to be erected in Carrizo Springs, Texas. The building, the new Municipal Auditorium, will be 100 ft. x 150 ft. and will be constructed of stone. The interior will have all modern improvements.

The F. A. Heyen restaurant was burglarized Sunday night. Entrance was made by cutting a screen on a rear window, then opening the latch after breaking the glass. A few dollars in change, which was left in a cup, and some candy are reported missing. No arrests have been made. Mr. Heyen thinks this has happened before and believes it to be some local culprit seeking pocket change.

Harris Parsons, who was signed by the Houston Buffs and sent to Jacksonville in the Dixie League, is displaying his baseball ability in grand style, according to the sports commentator of that city. Following is a clipping taken from the Jacksonville paper: "Preacher Parsons, in addition to driving out two-base raps, continued to roam the short stop ground in top-notch style. Long and lanky, Parsons reached out and brought back the ball on five occasions for toss outs as well as personally showing five Trojans the way to the dugout when they attempted to reach the second cushion."

FORD ON THE AIR.

A new suite of musical America by Ferde Grofe will be given its premiere in May when a new series of transcriptions for the Ford Dealers of America, featuring Grofe's on the air over more than 220 broadcasting stations throughout the country.

The orchestral suite is called "Wheels", and is a musical panorama depicting the development of America through transportation. The names of the six movements comprising the suite are: "Covered Wagon", "Iron Horse", "Automobile", "Airplane", "Ship", and "Truck".

As the theme of the new Ford Dealers' radio series, a phrase from the "Covered Wagon" movement, descriptive of the rolling of wheels across the plain, is being employed. All six movements will be played during the course of the series.

In addition to directing the program, Ferde Grofe will lead his orchestra. With him will be Marguerite Howard, Soprano, and The Buccaneers, a male octet. The present series, the "Ford Rhythm Revue", is being heard on the following stations in this territory: KPRC and KTRH, Houston; KTSA and WOAI, San Antonio; KRGV, Weslaco; KNOW, Austin; KFDM, Beaumont; KGFI, Corpus Christi; KTSM, El Paso.

NEW TEXAS ROAD MAP OFFERED FREE.

"History and nature have joined in making Texas one of the most interesting sections of the country. The tribute paid this state in a 1936 road map now being offered to motorists at some 40,000 Gulf line service stations throughout the state. A visit to Texas enters life."

Besides charting the state by ways and byways, the new map shows the state's principal attractions, describes its scenic attractions, principal points of interest to tourists, and promotes safe and sane driving in an illustrated list of "Do's and Don'ts for Drivers".

With the issuing of the new map, a note that Gulf was the first to offer a free road map to the traveler more than 20 years ago—a somewhat sketchy chart of dirt and mud-pikes in western Pennsylvania. Today, in addition to detailed maps of 33 states, Gulf offers to map tours for individual motorists to parts of the United States and Europe, through its Tourguide Bureau, Gulf Building, Pittsburgh, Pa.

CLUB PROGRAM TO BE BROADCAST.

Out of the Glee Club to Station WOAI Saturday P. M. for an audiotape. The club wanted to give a program sometime soon. An audiotape to be approved before it could be given, however. The program to be given will consist of two sextettes, four vocal solos, a quartet, and a flute duet.

The G. Club entertained with a skating party at the W. The place was decorated with the colors. Punch and were served after having skating. Those who attended the skating were Wanda Dawson, Wanda Mae Hull, Helen Benton, Smith, Milton Bohmfalk, Heyen, George Hull, Howard John Cameron, Martin Jack King, Jerome Finger, and Babo Windrow. The party the girls stayed all night. Eva Earnest and Eva Mae had a sunrise breakfast, which consisted of eggs, bacon, jelly, toast, and fruit.

The New Braunfels defeated the local diamond by the score of 8 to 6. Hartung was the only one to get over the fence, but several got some very nice hits. Hank, Finger, and Hartung were the stars.

The girls are planning a style show to be given at the P. T. A. meeting which will be May 11. Everyone is invited to the show regardless whether they are members of the P. T. A.

The girls will model the garments as planned and constructed during the year. These garments consist of blouses, cotton school dresses, tailored street dresses. There will be no admission for the show. However, that does not mean it is not worth paying to see. The date of the show is—May 11th.

The play-goers witnessed probably the best play that has been given in the auditorium in several years. The play was "The Family". The entire cast gave superb performances in the play, which won second prize in a National Play Contest. The first floor was filled to capacity and half of the balcony was filled. The receipts at the play totaled $128.00.

The Senior class play, several other plays, Miss Adams, Miss Rich, and a few additional guests at a party Friday night after the refreshments of punch, sandwiches, ice cream and cake were served to the guests.

SENIOR HONORED WITH DANCE.

Dr. and Mrs. H. J. Meyer entertained with an informal dance at their home Saturday night, April 25, honoring their son, Hugh, who will graduate from Hondo High School in May.

The dancing rooms were beautifully decorated with baskets of pink roses, corn-flowers, and baby-breath. Mrs. J. G. Barry and Mrs. M. I. Broxton presided at the lace-covered refreshment table placed on the sunporch. The table was particularly attractive due to the two cut-glass punch bowls that sparkled under the soft lights.

The hostess, Mrs. Meyer wore an informal afternoon gown of black crepe. Mrs. Barry was lovely in peach embroidered batiste with a corsage of sweetpeas, while Mrs. Broxton wore a gown of pink lace with pink and blue sandals. Miss Mary Elizabeth Meyer, who charmingly assisted her mother as hostess, chose an evening gown of bluish pink crepe with a ruffled cape of pink organza. With this dainty frock she wore silver sandals and a corsage of pastel sweet peas.

Chaperones included Dr. and Mrs. H. J. Meyer, Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Barry, Mr. and Mrs. M. L. McDowell, and Mr. and Mrs. M. I. Broxton. The guests numbered fifty.

MUSICAL FESTIVAL.

Friday fourteen of the High School students will leave for Seguin to enter the State Musical Festival which is to be held there. Mrs. C. M. Merritt, Mrs. Ed. Connevey, and Miss Spratt will sponsor the group. The entries will be as follows: Violin solo—Billie Merritt. Tenor solo—Martin Noonan. Reading—Hugh Meyer. Baritone Solo—Murrel Stiegler. Humorous Characterization—Ginger Fusselman. Vocal Duet—Ada Bell Carter Anna L. Welhausen, Ethelyn Ney, Evelyn Barnes. Piano solo—Adelle Scott. Piano Duet—Frances Ruth Fly, Betty Jean Merriman. Flute solo—Jo Reily. Vocal solos—Ethelyn Ney, Evelyn Barnes, Anna L. Welhausen.

All of the events in which the Hondo students will enter will take place Friday with the exception of the flute solo. Jo Reily will have to stay overnight in Seguin all by herself. She's scared to death, nearly.

FIRST GRADE.

Maybeth, Catherine, Henry and Lawrence spent Friday in San Antonio. They not only saw the parade but visited the missions, the park and saw a good picture show. We enjoyed hearing them tell about what they saw and learned. We have many pretty flowers in our room. The flowers make us happy. We have some new books. The stories are very interesting and we like to read them very much. We can read them now without much help. Sometimes we play the stories we have read and other times we draw pictures of the story.

Some days we write little stories about pictures. We like to do this. When we are big we will write big stories.

We like our new spelling books. They are lots of fun. You should read "Tippy the Traveling Table". Miss Fly read it to us. Maybe you think a table can't travel, but Tippy traveled and had many interesting adventures. Dicky and Alvin were sick Monday. We missed them very much.

THIRD GRADE.

Grace Woolls and Hal Hunter attended the Fiesta parade in San Antonio Friday afternoon. Glenn Wernette visited his aunt in Riomedina Sunday.

We are glad John Henry Embrey is able to be back in school again. Darline Brucks, John Henry Embrey, and Charles Monkhouse celebrated their birthdays during the past week.

FIFTH GRADE.

Frances Bendele, Dorothy Woolls and Douglas Fous attended the Battle of Flowers parade in San Antonio Friday afternoon. Mrs. L. B. Grell, room mother, was the guest of the fifth grade Friday. Miss Shaw spent the week-end with her mother in San Antonio. Jo Embrey enjoyed a cooling dip at Sharpe's Sunday.

MUSIC CENTENNIAL SINGERS.

The Music Centennial Singers are going to sing at Eagle Field on May 5. They are to dress in white and have blue Centennial hankies round their neck. Each singer will have a white satin badge with the letters H-O-N-D-O on it. Twenty-five of the Hondo students will go.

WESTMOORLAND TO CELEBRATE.

San Antonio, April 15, 1936—Hondo High School, which will possibly have several students in Westmoorland College next fall, has been invited to send representatives to the college's annual May Fete, according to Miss Virginia Joiner, registrar.

The May Day celebration, Westmoorland's contribution to the Texas Centennial program, will be in the form of a historical pantomime commemorating the college's becoming a Grade A senior Protestant institution. Alpha Kappa Phi scholarship fraternity and the Progressive Democrats will be responsible for the first scene representing the laying of the cornerstone of the school in 1890. The last graduating class of San Antonio Female College (1917) will be portrayed by residents of Mary Catherine Hall for girls and members of the campus Dramatic Club.

Westmoorland's becoming a co-educational school will be depicted by the football team and the Spurs, girl's drill squad. Sigma Tau Delta, national honorary English fraternity, will be responsible for properties and costumes, while journalism students will handle publicity for the affair.

Several ex-students of Hondo High School are now attending Westmoorland, and several others have expressed an interest in enrolling in Westmoorland.

THE S. F. CLUB MEETS.

Since three of our members withdrew from the club, there are only five to carry on with the club's work, but we think we can do it very successfully.

The S. F. Club met at the home of Elizabeth Reynolds Thursday, and many things were discussed. Refreshments of strawberry ice cream and cookies were served to Helen Burgen, Sue Muenink, Evelyn Ruth Dawson, Sis Meyer, and the hostess, Elizabeth Reynolds. The next meeting will be held at the home of Helen Burgen.

HITHER AND THITHER.

Gwen Gray spent the week-end in Biry, the guest of Miss Hazel Haass. Dorothy and Irma Moore, Eva Earnest, George and Eva Hull, and Velma Carter spent Friday and Saturday in San Antonio.

Odes Arnold, Wilbur Diedrick, and Jewel Diedrick visited Eva Earnest Sunday.

Vernell Stiegler and Mildred Wolf spent the week-end in San Antonio. Miss Spratt had as her guest over the week-end Mrs. F. D. Spratt from Ft. Worth.

Orceneth Fly, Fern Ulbrich, and Lela Grace Reily went to San Antonio Sunday afternoon.

Evelyn Knopp, Ep. Finger, Ginger Fusselman, Charles Tondre, Babo Windrow, Doris Neil and Tommy Danie spent the day at Con Can Sunday.

Ruth Carr and Patsy Moore visited Fern Ulbrich Friday and Saturday.

Doris Neil from San Antonio visited Evelyn Knopp Saturday and Sunday.

Miss Stubbs and Miss Connor were in San Antonio Saturday.

FOURTH GRADE.

Friday was visitors' day in the fourth grade. The host, Stanley Hollmeg, greeted the mothers at the door and Dorothy Lee Grell, the hostess, had them sign in a guest book.

The first period was spent in making corsages of sweet peas, rosebuds, and pansies for each visitor. It was also the duty of the hostess to present the flowers to the visitors. Several students exhibited model papers, pictures and books to the mothers.

SECOND GRADE.

We are making bird houses and clowns.

Robert Bendele and John Lee Norton went to San Antonio to the Fiesta Friday.

Mrs. Fly, Mrs. King, and Mrs. Miller were visitors of the second grade Friday afternoon.

Waiter: "How can you tell an old chicken from a young one?" Patron: "By the teeth." Waiter: "But sir, chickens don't have teeth." Patron: "No, but I have some."

FINDINGS AND INTERPRETATIONS OF VOCATIONAL AGRICULTURE TEACHING.

Vocational Education Bulletin No. 180 from the U. S. Office of Education reports interesting and valuable findings from studies made in the different states under college direction. 373 research studies for M. S. and Ph. D. degrees are reported. Va., V. P. I., 182.

It was found that the percentage of voc. students engaged in agricultural occupations increased slightly with the increase in the number of years of instruction in V. A. Ohio, O. S. U., 184.

Every community should have a farm shop course in its school; the subject matter should depend upon the local needs as determined by a survey. Tenn., Peabody, 192.

Causes of Teachers' failing were poor publicity and poor discipline. County Supts. are most influential in establishing new departments. N. Y., Cornell, 193.

The aims and methods of V. A. should be understood in communities before a V. A. Dept. is established. N. Y., Cornell, 203.

In order to give voc. training, it is necessary to teach the skill with the knowledge. V., V. P. I., 206.

Those qualities which showed some definite correlation with rank of dept. of ag., in which the students later taught were: reliability, belief in profession, affability, promptness, vision, industriousness, judgment, tact, sincerity, cooperation, enthusiasm, willingness to assume responsibility, persistence, self control, sense of humor, confidence, methodicalness, ease of expression, and good ideals. Ill., U. of Ill., 207.

Learning takes place most effectively and economically under conditions which are vital and worthwhile to the learner, as found in V. A. Colo., C. A. C., 213.

Strongest factor found among the publicity agents available for promoting V. A. was personality of instructor and his ability to meet people on their own level, understand their problems and their needs, and win their confidence. Tenn., Peabody, 214.

The voc. group of subjects costs less than any other group per student. Ag. Ed. Magazine, Feb. 1929, 218.

V. A. graduates excel; average high school grade of V. A. boys 2.51, others 2.25. In college, average grade of V. A. boy 2.0 compared with 1.8 for check group. Va., V. P. I., 219.

The number of high school age who were in school for each occupational class being as follows: Business men, 9 out of 10; professional men, 9 out of 10; farmer, 7 out of 10; mechanic, 6.2 out of 10; laborer, 6 out of 10; and coal miner, 4 out of 10. Distance from school has a decided effect on enrollment. Va., V. P. I., 225.

V. A. high school teachers should be free to fit their curricula offerings to the needs of the community and the individual students without question as to college preparation. Texas, A. & M. C., 226.

Teachers of agriculture did not receive the training in agriculture they needed for teaching agriculture in their respective areas. The agricultural training of some teachers affected the allocation of time. The study shows a need for more careful location of teachers in those farming areas where their training best fits them to teach. N. Y., Cornell, 232.

In the general conclusions, emphasis is placed upon the importance of clearly defined vocational aims, survey of community practices, information as to each pupil's experience, definite teaching plans, and adequate knowledge on the part of the teacher.

LIVESTOCK MARKET REPORT.

San Antonio, Texas, April 27, 1936.

Cattle receipts 317, calves 403. Price levels in the cattle division Monday at the San Antonio market held fully steady on most classes with last week's close. Outside shippers were competing actively for calves on early rounds, while local killers were generally bidding lower. The supply on sale was comparatively light for a Monday, and the rather brisk trading indicated a complete clearance would be made.

Medium to good fed steers and yearlings were in light supply but are quotable from $6.00 to $7.00. Plain grass steers sold from $5.00 to $6.00 with a few down to $4.00. Good fat light weight calves cashed from $6.00 to $6.75, few to $7.00. Medium grade grass offerings sold mostly from $4.75 to $5.75, while common and rannies sold as low as $3.25. Common to medium cows brought $3.50 to $4.50 with a few fat kinds to $5.00, cutter and low cutter offerings cashed mostly at $2.75 to $3.50. Bulls sold about steady, most sales ranging from $4.75 down to $3.50. Stocker and feeder calves and light weight yearlings cashed at $5.00 to $5.50, with plain offerings down to $4.00.

Hogs, receipts 67. Market active, steady to 10c higher than last week's close. Early top $9.35, paid sparingly for best 175 to 250-lb. truck hogs. Desirable 140 to 150-lb. $8.00 to $8.50, 150 to 170-lb. $8.50 to $9.00, 250 to 300-lb. $8.75 to $9.00, 300 to 350-lb. $8.25 to $8.75. Packing sows about steady at $7.50 to $8.00.

Sheep receipts, none. Market nominally steady. Medium to good shorn lambs quotable at $6.00 to $6.25, spring lambs up to $7.00. Aged shorn wethers are quotable at $4.25 and down.

Receipts shown are from 6:00 A. M., Saturday, to 6 A. M., Monday.

FOR RENT—4-room and bath cottage on 3 lots, 1 block from courthouse on graveled street. Screened service porch, lights, gas, garage, out-houses. Apply at Anvil Herald office or phone 127 3-rings.

PIONEER DEL RIO WOMAN SUCCUMBS.

Del Rio, Texas, April 21.—Last rites for Mrs. Genevieve Hans Wallen, 92, one of the real pioneers of Del Rio, were held Sunday afternoon.
Interment was in Sacred Heart Cemetery.

Mrs. Wallen, known to Del Rioans
as "Aunt Genie", was born Jan. 2, 1844. Her parents, Leonard and Elizabeth Hans, came to the United States from Alsace-Lorraine.

She was married in Castroville on Nov. 4, 1880, to Calvin Wallen, and early in the '80's the couple came to Del Rio to make their home. That was before the Southern Pacific Railroad had been built, and the little town called San Felipe del Rio, consisted of half a dozen buildings and several Mexican jacals.

Eventually Mrs. Wallen established the Central Hotel and later the Wallen House.

Although Mrs. Wallen had witnessed Indian depredations in Frio and Castroville, these raids had ceased
in this section by the time she and Wallen came here.

Wallen died in 1904. For many years Aunt Genie has resided in her home on Pecan Street where she rented rooms.

Six grandchildren, 12 great grandchildren, two nieces and a nephew survive. The grandchildren are Calvin, Carl, Edmund and Michael Wallen, Mrs. Alva Woodward and Mrs.
Willie Latham, all of Del Rio. The nieces are Mrs. Ella Thumm and Mrs.
George Randall of Del Rio; the nephew is Linney Hans, also of this city.

San Antonio, April 27, 1936.— Hondo High School, which will possibly have several students in West-moorland College next fall, has been invited to send representatives to the college's annual May Fete, according to Miss Virginia Joiner, registrar.

The May Day celebration this year will be in the form of a historical pantomime commemorating Westmoorland's becoming a Grade A Senior Protestant college. Alpha Kappa Phi scholarship fraternity and the Progressive Democrats will be responsible for the first scene representing the laying of the cornerstone of the school in 1890. The last graduating class of San Antonio Female College (1917) will be portrayed by residents of Mary Catherine Hall for girls and members of the campus Drao club.

Westmoorland's becoming a coeducational school will be depicted by the football team and the Spurs girls' drill squad. Sigma Tau Delta, national honorary English fraternity,
will be responsible for properties and costumes while journalism students will handle publicity for the affair.

Orceneth Fly has expressed an in-

DEVINE NEWSLETS.

From The Devine News.
DEVINE ATTORNEY ELECTED
PROFESSOR LAW SCHOOL.

Attorney F. X. Vance has been elected to a full professorship in the law department of St. Mary's University, San Antonio, beginning with the September term, 1936.

Few people realize that this young man is a graduate of the Devine High School, S. W. T. College, San Marcos, with L. L. B. and L. L. M., Georgetown University of Washington, D. C. We dislike to lose Frank from Devine, but congratulate him
on his being elected to this position.

RAY-MECHLER.

Mrs. Jake Mechler announces the marriage of her daughter, Adele, to Mr. Jack Ray, of Pittsburgh, Pa., in San Antonio, Wednesday, April 1st, nineteen hundred thirty-six. After the ceremony a delightful dinner was served to about thirty guests. The bride couple are now at home to their friends at 2907 Monterrey St., San Antonio. The Mechlers were formerly of Devine.

FROM YANCEY.

Our Methodist choir went to Devine last Sunday night and rendered
the Easter cantata there.

Coach Eggen accompanied the F.
F. A. boys to Hondo to the track meet. The boys did excellent work
there, winning a trophy.

Prof. Skinner attended the athletic meet at Hondo last Saturday, and motored to San Antonio Sunday.

Mr. Harrison Wilson shipped a car load of cattle to Ft. Worth last weekend.

Mr. J. G. Weekley was at Los Angeles for two weeks looking after cattle, and came in late Sunday.

Our local chapter P. T. A. met last Wednesday, and incidentally a representative of the District P. T. A. of Dallas met with them. The local P.
T. A. put in an order for two plays that will be put on later.

Mr. F. W. Alexander of Keene was here on business last week. His son, Buster, and wife came with him and visited Mrs. McCaughan and family, leaving for Keene early Sunday.

Miss Marjorie Nickerson of Devine visited her cousin, Miss Pauline Mc-Anelly, last week-end. Miss Nickerson moved to Devine recently; her former home was Boston, Mass.

Mr. and Mrs. John Martin were visitors here the early part of last week.
Guests of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Fae-ler.

FROM BIRY.

Sometime Saturday afternoon Mr.
and Mrs. Edson Billings' home caught on fire and they were not at home.
Mr. Lee Wernette saw the fire and tried to extinguish it. Billings lost everything they had in the fire, but saved the hay stacks and other outhouses.

Prof. Bader attended the P. T. A.
Council in Riomedina Saturday.

Mr. Clarence Wernette accompanied Mrs. Briscoe of the Shook school and pupils to Brackenridge Park in San Antonio. They all report an enjoyable time.

Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Blackburn spent Sunday at Brackenridge Park.

Mr. and Mrs. Otto Burell and family spent the week-end in San Antonio.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Bader and family and Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Bader and family visited relatives in Castroville Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Clark Tondre and Mr. Horace Mann of San Antonio visited their parents, Mr. and Mrs.
Desra Mann, here.

Mr. and Mrs. Edison Billings, Jr., and children and Miss Lucille Watson
were in Hondo Saturday.

DR. MILES'
ANTI-PAIN PILLS

Fewer Aches and Pains More Health and Pleasure

PAIN drags you down—physically, mentally, morally.

Why continue to endure it? Try Dr. Miles
Anti-Pain Pills for Headache, Neuralgia, Muscular, Rheumatic, Sciatic, and Periodic Pains. They seldom fail.

Dr. Miles Anti-Pain Pills are pleasant to take and prompt to act. They do not upset
the stomach, cause constipation or leave you with a dull, depressed feeling.

Ask your druggist or any of the hundreds of thousands enthusiastic users. Probably you too can find relief.

I think all Dr. Miles medicines are wonderful, but Anti-Pain Pills are my favorite.

Mrs. Doc Blankenship, Stamford, Texas
I have used your Anti-Pain Pills only a short time, but they have given me prompt relief. They did for me in a week more than any other medicine I had taken for a year. Phil Goller,

Milwaukee, Wisconsin
I am never without Anti-Pain Pills. I think they are much better than anything else I have ever used. Sometimes when I am tired and nervous, and feel like I would go under, I take two Anti-Pain Pills and in a short time I feel like a different person.

Mrs. S. Tidabach,
Stroudsburg, Pennsylvania
Your Anti-Pain Pills have been used in my home with wonderful results. I recommend them.

Maggie Belle Dudley, Vancorbo, N. C.
Your Anti-Pain Pills helped me a great deal. I have used them for years. I carry them everywhere in my purse and always keep them in the house. They have saved me a great many sick headaches.

THE RAIN.
Although threatening clouds had been hovering around for several days it did not start to rain until Sunday after midnight, when 1-4 of an inch fell. Then early Monday night clouds rolled in from the southwest and two more inches of rain fell. This rain was accompanied by hail and several miles southwest of town did much damage. At Hill Top it tore the leaves of corn into shreds, and sweeping across town with great force but of short duration did little damage, but on its way up the Medina River it increased in force. A few miles northwest of town much damage is reported. This rain where no damage was done by the hail will help the corn, which had suffered from lack of moisture, and while it was somewhat late for the oats it will yet benefit some oat patches.

SOLENN COMMUNION AT ST. LOUIS CATHOLIC CHURCH.
A class of 22 boys and 11 girls made their first Solemn Communion Sunday, April 26, 1936, in St. Louis Catholic Church. At nine o'clock the entire congregation with banners flying marched in procession from the St. Louis Church to the school house, and accompanied the communicants to church where Solemn High Mass was celebrated by Rev. Dean J. Lenzen. In the afternoon services the children renewed their baptismal vows, which ended a day which for its solemnity will long be remembered. The following are the names of those who made their first Communion: Ferdinand Zinsmeyer, Albert Mechler, Jack Wernette, Basil Karm, Clovis Schweers, E. J. Haby, Wilmer Mangold, Winfred Haegelin, Robert Burell, Lee Allen Tschirhart, Joe Sittre, Earl McSwain, Edward Fisher, James Mueller, Leon Suehs, Mark Mechler, Kenneth Flory, Harvey Haby, Lester Boehme, Emmet Haby, Floyd Tondre, Conrad Wurzbach, Lillian Mangold, Catherine Hoog, Dorothy Lee Haby, Eloise Haegelin, Doris Tondre, Jannette Tschirhart, Margaret Mehr, Ludell Moehring, Vivian Schott, Leora Boehme and Otelia Sittre.

YE GIFTE SUPREME.

An Englishman, an Irishman, and a Scotsman were having lunch together.

"By the way, did either of you go to Smythe's wedding?" inquired the Englishman.

"I wasn't able to, but I sent him a dinner service set for twelve people."

"I wasn't there, either," said the Irishman, "but I sent a tea set for twenty-four people. Were you there, McTavish?"

"No, I couldn't get there, but I sent him a pair of sugar tongs for a hundred people."

SENSE OF FITNESS.

Two girls were sitting in a dentist's office when one of them remarked, "Why does the dentist call his office a 'dental parlor'?"

"I suppose he thinks it would be better than 'drawing room,'" answered the other girl.—American Girl.

Education is no self-starter, you have to crank it.

FOR THE NEIGHBORS.

"Annie," said the mistress of the house, "I notice you have been taking our empty grapefruit skins home with you. What do you do with them?"

The Negro maid looked up at the mistress with a sheepish grin.

"Yes, ma'am," she admitted, "I've been carrying 'em home. I think they make my garbage can look so stylish."—Tit-Bits.

GULF RADIO STARS.

Nationally known radio stars will appear in these studios, now nearing completion on the grounds of the Texas Centennial Central Exposition at Dallas, this summer and fall.

Singers, comedians, operatic stars, famous orchestra leaders, stars known from one end of the country to the other, but stars who, up until now, have remained only 'voices' to millions of Texans, will appear here in person and put on their air-shows free of charge in this big glass-front studio building.

The radio studios, which are being built by Gulf Oil Corporation, are located in almost the exact center of the Exposition Grounds. From the patio or court in front of the U-shaped building, visitors to the Centennial will be able to see their favorite in action. Inasmuch as both of the big studios, the monitor rooms, and the central control room are in full view through plate glass, the audience in the patio will not only be able to hear the program as it goes out over the air but see how it is produced, enacted and controlled.

The Gulf Radio Studios, with their equipment and the "singing tower" radio installations being provided by this company for the amusement and entertainment of Exposition visitors at twenty other points on the grounds constitute the most elaborate installation of its kind ever set up. Through the installation it will be possible to have in production at one time twelve different programs, all of them under control from the control studios.

An organization of thirty or thirty-five men and women will be required to operate the system. It will include a program director for radio, a program director for public address, production men, continuity writers, announcers, and maintenance technicians.

The studios will be staffed cooperatively by Gulf Oil Corporation and the Texas Centennial Central Exposition. Facilities of the studios will be used impartially by local radio stations, sectional chains and the national networks.

Programs to be presented through the studios include many commercially sponsored regular features of Texas radio stations and chains, sustaining programs originating from talent which will be drawn to the Exposition, and special broadcasts by Texas artists and entertainers, who will come to Dallas to participate in events to be staged there as a part of the Exposition.

Stiewer to Be Keynote for Republicans—Flood Control Bill Passes Senate—Battle Over New Tax Bill in House.

© Western Newspaper Union.

WHEN the Republicans gather in national convention at Cleveland next June their keynote for their Presidential campaign will be sounded by Frederick Stiewer, the eloquent and handsome United States senator from Oregon. He was selected to be temporary chairman of the convention by unanimous vote of the arrangements committee of the national committee after due consideration had been given the names of several other prominent Republicans.

Senator Stiewer

Observers held that the motive in picking Stiewer was a desire of the party leaders to give the convention a western atmosphere at the start, with an especial eye to agriculture. The senator has been actively identified with wheat growing and his home town, Portland, is a center of the northwestern battleground of the November elections. His colleague is Senator Charles L. McNary, one of the authors of the old McNary-Haugen agriculture bill and by many regarded as a possible dark horse in the Presidential nomination race. Governor Landon said he was glad to hear Stiewer had been chosen, and it was believed Senator Borah also approved, for in many ways Stiewer has proved himself liberal, and at the same time has upheld the Constitution and the American form of government.

He has opposed most of the New Deal measures, but has not been uncompromising, as he voted for such acts as the TVA extension, the labor disputes act, and the AAA amendments. He has been active in soldier legislation, including the bonus. He opposed the work relief bill, the utilities bill, the tax bill and the Guffey coal bill. Congressman Bertrand Snell of New York, minority leader in the house, was selected to be permanent chairman of the convention, a position he held in the convention of 1932.

DISREGARDING warnings by Senator Vandenberg of Michigan against too hasty action, the senate passed a bill introduced by Senator Overton of Louisiana authorizing the expenditure of $272,000,000 for flood control work on the lower Mississippi river and its tributaries. There was no record vote. The bill has no relation to the omnibus flood control measure now pending, which may reach a billion. The sum named in the senate bill is authorized merely to be appropriated and will have to be put in a deficiency appropriation bill. Senator Overton declared it was justified by emergency conditions.

In addition to the 272 million dollars there is authorized an appropriation of 15 millions to be used in rescue work or repair and maintenance of flood control works.

FEDERAL JUDGE HALSTED L. RITTER of Florida was found guilty on impeachment charges by the senate and removed from office, being the fourth federal jurist to be ousted in this manner.

On each of the first six articles of impeachment a majority of senators voted for his acquittal; but on the seventh article, which was a generalized summary of the charges against him, he was convicted by a vote of 56 to 28.

An order declaring Ritter should be "forever disqualified from holding any office of honor, trust or profit under the United States" was defeated, 76 to 0.

The senate's verdict in the twelfth impeachment case brought before it as a high court of impeachment since foundation of the American republic amounted to a decision that Judge Ritter had violated the Constitutional requirements of good behavior in office. It carried no punishment other than automatic removal from the bench.

THE administration's bill to levy about 800 million dollars in new taxes yearly was introduced in the house by the ways and means committee, and a fierce battle started immediately. The Republican minority of the committee issued a report which stated that the proposed tax law was "unsound in principle, will undermine business stability, is another step toward regimentation of all business, and is not designed to raise revenue but admittedly is another New Deal experiment."

Conservative Democrats joined with the Republicans in this attack against the bill, but the administration leaders were confident the measure would pass before May 1.

Complete revision of the corporation tax system is the main objective of the bill. It levies a graduated tax on corporation income, based on percentage of earnings withheld from distribution to stockholders in the form of dividends.

The majority report asserted the measure would raise about $803,000,000 the first year, but admitted that over a three-year period revenue would fall $334,000,000 short of the President's budget-balancing program. It was added that the deficit could be acted on "more intelligently" next session.

SENATOR KENNETH McKELLAR of Tennessee made an attempt to reduce by $225,000 the appropriation for the federal bureau of investigation, otherwise J. Edgar Hoover's G-men, and failed ignominiously. Only McKellar and one other senator voted in the affirmative on a viva voce vote, and in the brief but lively debate several Democrats, including Majority Leader Joe Robinson, joined Senator Vandenberg in denouncing the proposed reduction. The Michigan man's remarks were caustic. Said he:

"I will go as far as the senator from Tennessee in all matters of economy, but it seems to me that this is a peculiar place to start economizing. The bureau says it needs 175 more men. If the senator wants to save 175 men, I will join him in taking that number from the 18,235 employed by Doctor Tugwell's resettlement administration. I will join him in abolishing 175 of the 43,641 jobs under Mr. Hopkins. I will join him in removing that number from the 19,548 jobs under the HOLC, or the 2,422 jobs under the long interred NRA."

SEVEN persons were indicted by a federal grand jury in St. Paul, Minn., for the kidnapping of William Hamm, Jr., brewer, in June, 1933. Some of the accused are already in prison. No. 1, one, Alvin Karpis, public enemy No. 1, is still at large, and the Department of Justice in Washington has offered a reward of $5,000 for information leading to his apprehension.

OCCUPATION of Addis Ababa and all of Ethiopia was the price demanded by Italy for an armistice in East Africa when the council of the League of Nations met again in Geneva. Baron Pompeo Aloisi presented the ultimatum on behalf of Dictator Mussolini. Wolde Mariam, representing Ethiopia, countered with a request that the league invoke all penalties against Italy under article 16 of the covenant, these including military sanctions as well as the economic penalties which the league has been trying to enforce. The British and French delegates explained the stand of their respective governments in the embroglio.

The league was helpless, and having received the discouraging report of the conciliation committee, was compelled to confess it could not find means of attaining peace. France will not consent to the imposition of military sanctions, and Great Britain naturally will not undertake to enforce them by herself. It appeared the poor Ethiopians were to be abandoned to their fate, meaning the extinction of their empire and their exploitation by Italy.

Anthony Eden in his address to the council warned France that she might expect from Great Britain no further support against aggression by Germany than France had given against Italy.

From the north, south and west the Italian armies were advancing on Addis Ababa, and the panic stricken civilian inhabitants of the capital were fleeing from the city. Foreigners sought shelter in the bomb-proof British legation. The mayor issued all the arms available and the government called on all able men to make a last stand for liberty, saying "it is better to die than to be enslaved."

Latest dispatches said the Ethiopians were blasting the road between Dessaye and Addis Ababa, and that the advance of some of the Italian columns had been halted by strong attacks. The emperor was allied with his troops and turned the government at the capital over to Crown Prince Asfa Wosan.

THAT old gold mine at Moose River, Nova Scotia, provided an epic tale of unselfish and heroic human endeavor that will be told for many a year. For ten days more than a hundred experienced miners strove unceasingly to rescue three men who had been trapped by the fall of dirt and rocks in the 140-foot level of the abandoned mine they were inspecting. Machinery and other equipment were brought from far away. A diamond drill was driven through and through this small opening, communication was established and food was dropped down but already one of the three was dead of hunger and exhaustion. Finally the desperate efforts of the rescuers were successful and the two survivors were brought safely to the surface, together with the body of the dead man. Those saved were Dr. D. E. Robertson, famous and beloved surgeon of Toronto, and C. A. Scadding. The one who did not live was Herman Magill, also of Toronto.

SECRETARY OF LABOR PERKINS reported that employment in manufacturing and nonmanufacturing industries during March showed a gain of 250,000. One division of the steel industry, she reported, had increased its employment above the 1929 level.

Pay rolls in the industries surveyed by the Labor department were $10,000,000 above February and $20,000,000 over a year ago.

The employment index in the wire making division of the steel industry, she said, now stands at 143, compared with 124.2 in 1929. At the same time she pointed out that four and a half million young people have come on the labor market since 1929 and that employment would have to rise to 125 per cent of the "normal" level to absorb these newcomers.

Sixty-six of the manufacturing industries reported gains, she said, and 11 of the 16 nonmanufacturing industries showed improvement in employment.

GOV. ED. C. JOHNSON of Colorado is determined to keep "cheep labor" out of his state and has taken steps to stop the invaders at the boundary lines by means of a military patrol of the National Guard.

Col. Nell W. Kimball, adjutant general, flew over western Oklahoma on a scouting expedition following reports workers were gathering for a concentrated "border run."

Guard officers said workers were camped across the state line in Oklahoma. Reports that indigents were evading the patrol along the New Mexico line by turning eastward sent patrol units hurrying to the Kansas boundary.

ANOTHER post-war treaty has gone floozy. President Kemal Ataturk of Turkey and his cabinet decided that the Dardanelles must be remilitarized, despite the Lusane pact, and Turkish troops were promptly moved into the zone along the 75-mile long strait that connects the Sea of Marmara and the Aegean sea. It is believed Kemal will soon rebuild the fortifications in the zone which the allies failed to capture during the

President Kemal

World war. The Turkish dictator didn't surprise anyone by his action, for he asked permission of the League of Nations some time ago to rearm the Dardanelles. No formal reply had been made, but the British government rather favored giving consent, and the Soviet union openly approves Turkey's move. Italy was displeased, and there was considerable excitement in the Balkan states, especially Bulgaria which borders on European Turkey. The Bulgarians renewed their demand for a corridor giving them a direct route to the Aegean sea.

Probably Kemal's action will not be severely condemned by anyone, for most of the European nations are preparing for war with feverish haste. Austria's army, small but well equipped, held a spring parade in Vienna, and immediately the nations of the little entente displayed their anger at this show of military force and their military orders in the Austrian capital were ordered not to occupy the places reserved for them among the reviewing officials. Rumania has increased its military budget to $38,000,000 and created a special fund of $20,000,000 for the development of aviation. Hungary is clamoring for revision of the Trianon treaty and recovery of the territory it lost to the little entente.

LOUIS MCHENRY HOWE, secretary to President Roosevelt and for many years his close friend and adviser, died in the Naval hospital at Washington after an illness of more than a year. Mr. Howe was known in the capital as "the President's maverick" for it was largely due to his efforts that Mr. Roosevelt reached the White House. For twenty-five years, from the day when Mr. Roosevelt and he first met in Albany, he had devoted himself to forwarding his friend's political fortunes. During the Chicago convention and the ensuing campaign his planning and his advice were credited largely with the results attained.

DISPATCHES from Chengtu, China, tell a terrible story of the famine and drought in Szechuen province, once one of the most fertile regions in the country. It is said to be the worst famine in the history of China, the deaths numbering many thousands and fully 30,000,000 persons being in distress. Suicides and "mercy slayings" are everyday incidents.

Officials said the situation primarily was a result of Communist incursions during the last two years in which the reds overran and pillaged the land.

WHAT American newspaper publishers think of the actions of the Black lobby committee was expressed forcibly and unequivocally in resolutions adopted by their national association at its annual meeting in New York. The committee was accused of having violated the first, fourth and fifth amendments to the Constitution by its seizures of private communications, and the publishers recommended that all victims of the committee's acts seek civil damages and demand the "prosecution of all involved in the odious affair under the criminal statutes of the United States."

OTTORINO RESPIGHI, one of the most famous of modern Italian composers, died in Rome at the age of fifty-six of heart disease following blood poisoning. His passing is cause for deep mourning among music lovers everywhere.

Washington Digest

National Topics Interpreted By WILLIAM BRUCKART

NATIONAL PRESS BLDG. WASHINGTON, D. C.

Washington.—I suggested in these columns a year or more ago that the campaign of 1936 would bring forth some of the most amazing oddities in political alignments that this country had ever known. It was apparent, even during the battle for ballots in 1932, that a gigantic shake-up in the voting alignment of citizens was in the making. These things are now being demonstrated and more proof of the changing times seems just around the corner.

Break in Party Lines

We all have seen how such outstanding figures as former Gov. Alfred E. Smith of New York, the Democratic Presidential nominee in 1928, have boldly flouted President Roosevelt and his New Deal theories and we have witnessed such vitriolic outbursts as those by former Senator James A. Reed, that old-line Missouri Democrat, and we have watched with interest the hauling and filling by Jeffersonian Democrats who find New Deal fantasies to be a bitter pill to swallow. Later, there has come another most interesting situation respecting partisan alignment.

Although the action received much less attention than I believe it deserves, the determination of the Virginia Republicans in their recent convention at Roanoke to refrain from placing a Republican candidate in the field against Senator Carter Glass constitutes, to my mind, one of the most extraordinary twists ever to take place under our two party system. That convention, acting utterly without precedent, took the position that it was better to leave the field clear for the election of the veteran senator than to precipitate a political battle by naming a Republican candidate.

The reason for the action of the Virginia Republicans is quite clear in one way. They felt that Carter Glass, although a life-long Democrat who has carried on his share of bombardment of Republican principles and policies, could do the country more good from their standpoint than could be attained by placing a Republican candidate against him without chance of success. To state this premise in another way: Carter Glass does not swallow the New Deal as a whole and when he finds objectionable features in the Roosevelt program, he is independent enough and has the strength of character to voice his feelings. Doing this as a member of the majority party in the senate necessarily has more weight than all of the criticism of the New Deal that could be voiced by a Republican—if one could be elected in Virginia—and the Virginia convention chose a course which it believed would best serve the nation as a whole.

But it is the circumstance of a party convention refusing to engage in battle that interests me most. Under such circumstances, the old idea of party loyalty becomes not only illogical but ridiculous. Instead of a call to battle, we see what amounts to a call for support of a theoretical opponent. Of course, in the opinion of many, Carter Glass is the outstanding exponent of conservative thought in the Democratic party and if he speaks for conservative thought in the Democratic party he is almost speaking for conservative thought in the Republican party. It is easy to see, therefore, why the Virginia Republicans adopted the course they did but where does that leave party loyalty? What does it mean as to the future alignment of political thought?

The course followed by the Virginia Republicans is not more strange than the action of President Roosevelt himself who has endorsed Senator Hiram Johnson of California and Senator George Norris of Nebraska, with almost boyish enthusiasm. Senator Johnson and Senator Norris have not been regarded as regular Republicans but they have been flying the Republican banner for a good many years. Yet, the President verbally pats them on the back and offers his blessing.

During the same period, we have watched Mr. Roosevelt playing touch-and-go with the La Follettes in Wisconsin. Of course, the La Follettes cataloged themselves as Progressives but they never have had a great deal in common with old-line Democrats.

Likewise, in the senate if one is to believe gossip frequently bandied about, Senator McNary of Oregon, the titular Republican leader, has been only half-heartedly fighting the New Deal. In fact, some of Senator McNary's own colleagues claim that he has really given aid and comfort to their political enemies.

In the meantime, one can wander around the halls of congress and hear private observations from men who were supposed to be stalwart partisans that they have been unable to determine yet what their course ought to be. One of them remarked confidentially to me that he believed he would have to consult a clairvoyant before he could say whether he was going to support the New Deal or oppose it or try to straddle the fence. Of course, his remark was in a humorous vein but it epitomized the thought and, I may say, the worry of a very great many partisans at this time.

So, we have a picture six months ahead of the actual casting of the ballots in which party lines are torn asunder for countless hundreds of more or less important party figures. I think everyone agrees that the condition comes from the development of New Deal principles and policies under the leadership of President Roosevelt. There will be many who are now doubtful as to their course who will realign themselves with the New Deal because they were originally Democrats and there will be many who will again follow the Republican banner down the stretch. But it seems to me that three years of Roosevelt probably have established a greater segment of independent voting strength in this country than had resulted from a quarter of a century of partisan politics before. The situation must be construed then as indicating that hereafter those who stick definitely in party harness will continue to stand hitched because they have political aspirations and ambitions or because economic conditions in their communities are better fostered by the party with which they have aligned themselves. Beyond that, it seems to me, citizens, in most cases, will vote in increasing numbers for the man instead of the party.

At last, after almost two years of promotion work, President Roosevelt has abandoned two of his cherished dreams:

'Quoddy Dream' Dropped

harnessing the tides of Passamaquoddy bay in Maine and construction of a gigantic canal across Florida. The 'Quoddy project designed to produce electric power in quantities never before turned out, was to cost $40,000,000. The great job of excavating a silt across the face of the state of Florida to let ships go direct from the Atlantic to the Gulf without going around the toe of the state was to cost $150,000,000.

Only a small amount, that is, a small sum compared to other New Deal expenditures, had been wasted on the ship canal plans before it was tossed into the limbo of forgotten things, but something like $10,000,000 already has been used in the attempt to make the moon work through the medium of the tides of 'Quoddy bay. Both projects can be charged up to politics and experiments and probably the country will be better off to take the loss and avoid the use of further money.

The President fully intended to go through with his plans respecting these two projects until he ran into vicious opposition in congress. Too many representatives and senators realized that they were going to have the names 'Quoddy bay and Florida canal buried at them through the coming campaign if they voted their approval by including additional funds for these projects in the relief appropriations. I don't know what is going to become of the homes, the model city, erected for workers near the 'Quoddy bay project. Photographs of this village indicate it to be a community of which any resident might be proud. It was constructed to assure the workers on the 'Quoddy project a comfortable place in which to live. They still have the comfortable place in which to live because the government still owns the homes but what is to become of those people and what disposition is to be made of the property is something else again. Thus, development of electric power from the tides of 'Quoddy bay has been an engineering quoddy that has raged for years as a controversy. It has recurred frequently as a political matter but never until the New Deal came in were any tangible steps taken to install electrical equipment in that bay where the tides run higher than anywhere else in the world.

Most engineers have contended that it was impossible to place in the bay equipment that could function satisfactorily while at the same time producing electric current at a rate that would bring a return on the tremendous investment necessary. Further than that, no one yet has been able to show where so much electric energy could be marketed. The territory is sparsely settled and the industrial production is small. While it was contended that limitless power would bring industries into that section, the indications were, even after actual work started, for only a small increment in the number of factories and other users of energy.

Faced Difficulties

The 'Quoddy power idea probably was the most fascinating and most romantic of anything proposed by the New Deal for the purpose of creating jobs. Like the proposed Florida ship canal, it held potentialities but those whose opinions heretofore have been sound remain unconvinced that either the power plan or the canal for a short cut across Florida ever could repay the government for money spent there.

He Used His Other Chance Two Big Birthdays England, Rich, Worries The Elephant's Pulse

New York's Titterton murder story turns out not to be "the perfect crime."

Arthur Brisbane

The murderer, upholsterer, fully took any cord used in trade, with no had bound unfortunate woman but forgot that had left a strand of rope in the body of the victim. Thanks to a police work trap, the murderer was caught.

Berlin reports a great Hitler birthday celebration. A fine display of military power—planes, war tanks, fighting men—were on parade when he killed the woman, had "another chance" and made of it.

Particularly interesting were lines in the song sung by storm troopers:

"Today we own Germany, And tomorrow the whole world."

The day after Hitler celebrated his forty-seventh birthday. He was forty-two thousand six hundred and eighty-ninth anniversary. He celebrated by launching two Italian cruisers and speeding up plane production. He tells Italian planes and mothers he must have 300,000 population for Italy not less than 1950. In 1921, when Mussolini took charge, Italy's population was 38,000,000. There will soon be more and food to raise more Italian. Ethiopia. Easy for all but the mother.

England, doing well in a business way, with more than $2,000,000,000 worth of Bank of England notes circulating among tradesmen, is collecting and depleting the French reserves. While England tries to keep down the price of her "no-gold" pound, France is afraid she will not be able to keep up the value of her gold franc, already devalued by 80 per cent of its 1914 value. What becomes of the "magic in gold"? Our dear old dollar is worth only 30 cents, and only 20 cents in exchange know it.

Doctor Benedict, of Carnegie laboratories, finds that the adult elephant heart beats from 22 to 30 times a minute, less than half the human heartbeat, and the elephant heart is nine strokes faster than the human heart. Man's heart beats more rapidly while he stands because then it must raise blood to the full height of the body. Old people with tired hearts, should do their walking lying down—the blood flows horizontally with little heart-effort.

England is pleased; Sir Robert B. Field, who makes for British steel, announces a shell for tough naval gun that can pass unhurt through armor plate twelve inches thick and explode on the other side. "One shell of the kind fired in the region of the magazine would probably cause destruction of a modern battleship." England is manufacturing the shells rapidly; others are manufacturing airplanes bombs that might make old-fashioned naval guns and shells useless.

In Miami a lady, first name Lela, and married, has husky triplet babies. Two gentlemen, the official husband and one other, demand custody of the triplets, each calling himself the father. The alleged "father" was not the husband would submit to a blood test, his lawyer says. How would King Solomon decide that?

Clarence Darrow, one of the country's most convincing lawyers, says on his seventy-ninth birthday:

"I say that religion is the belief in future life and in God. I don't believe in either." The hothead beside the track, watching the express train go by, might say, reasonably enough: "I do not believe in such a thing as a locomotive engineer."

Moscow has returned to the Japanese government in Manchukuo, with full military honors, the bodies of three Japanese killed in a fight with Soviet guards. The military honors will not console the widows, and repeated often enough, such incidents lead to war.

Europe envies our fortunate country, which gives only paper dollars and inflation paper bonds to its citizens but has, buried in the ground, the biggest lump of gold on earth.

A wonderful thing is micro-chemistry. It tells scientists that off the coast of Greenland sea water contains more gold than in New York harbor. That one village in Switzerland has less gold than the world because it is the first the dewdrops contain more gold.

SYNOPSIS
The Duke, a pleasant, likable youth, twenty-three, jobless and broke, engaged in an unoccupied summer home in Southampton, seeking shelter from a rain storm. He makes himself at home. Six years ago his father had died in China, leaving the lad, Barry, to fight his way back to the States. He did not recollect ever having had a mother. Dozing at the fire, he is startled by the arrival of a mother, a chauffeur, Evans; a sister, Willets; a maid, Jack. He learns that the owner of the house, Jack, who the servants had never seen, is expected. He decides to bluff.

CHAPTER I—Continued

"I hope not," the Duke replied, grinning broadly, and, seeing that grin, the four servants smiled, too—plainly surprised at the master's good humor.
"This is Evans, sir," the butler continued. "This is Mrs. Mulligan, Cook, and Annie Jeffers, the parlor maid. If you don't mind, sir, I'll get the set, and then I'll come upstairs to report."
"Fine!" said the Duke, calculating that five minutes would get him into his clothes, and out the front door. He was climbing the steps again when Willets called.
"I never thought, sir. Your bed is made. I'll get the linen out, and give Annie up there right away. You'll want a good fire in your room and dry things out."
"I've got a fire in the library," the Duke replied. "Don't hurry. I'm very comfortable."
"They did hurry. He had scarcely put his trousers under the mattress when Annie appeared, just as he had seen her in the hall, and with a small load of immaculate sheets and snow cases.
"Mr. Evans is lighting the furnace," she said. "The house is that cold. It's an oil-burner, Mr. Willets says. I wonder you didn't think of it. But, of course, you're a stranger here, too."
"A stranger?" What did she mean by that? Where had he been, he wondered? Evidently, not home, at any rate. So that was why Willets didn't know he wasn't Mr. Ridder. Was Willets new? The girl was on her knees at the hearth, and the Duke ventured half a question.
"Willets isn't a stranger?"
"Of course not," Annie replied. "Nor Mr. Evans. Just Mrs. Mulligan and me. We was taken on when Madam and Mr. Ridder expected to spend the summer here, and we've been let out, I guess, when they decided to go to Germany. If it hadn't been for your coming back."

"I picked just the right minute, didn't I?" grinned the Duke.
"And 'You sure did!' grinned the parlor maid, spreading the linen over the arms of two chairs.
It was an amusing conversation, but it had been too long. Returning to the library, trousers still in hand, Barry Gilbert encountered the ubiquitous Willets. "I'll take those, sir," said the butler, taking them.
"Oh, never mind!"
"They'll need pressing."
"I'll need them."
"They'll be ready for you in the morning," Willets said, with a note of finality. "Did you bring any pyjamas, sir?"
Any lie would do for now.
"Yes," answered the Duke, "but, like an idiot, I checked my suitcase, and God knows what happened to the check!"
"I'll get you a pair of your father's," Willets volunteered. "You're very much of a size." He was taking stock of the new master. "Look like your father, if you don't mind my saying so, sir. Same figure. Same kind of face, only kinder, if you don't mind my saying so, sir."

The Duke didn't mind. It was all a lucky break, only—how long would it last? "Mustn't over-play my luck," thought the Duke. But the real Mr. Ridder wasn't coming until tomorrow. Why make a break for it tonight? The storm was roaring, and throwing buckets of water against the windows.
The butler had gone into the bedroom, and returned with a pair of purple silk pyjamas.
"Anything else, sir?"
"No, thanks."
"I'll be leaving you then. There's a lot to do—getting the rooms ready for cook and the maid. They've never been here before. Don't know their way about. Evans don't neither. What time breakfast, sir?"
"Oh, say eight o'clock."
"Right, sir. Good night, sir," said the butler, bowing himself out.
"Easy!" thought the Duke, standing before the fire, with the purple pyjamas in his hand. "Too easy! Too damned easy! There's a catch in it somewhere!"
Willets implied that he had been with the family some time. Why had he never seen the son? Or even a picture of him? Why was he so willing to accept a stranger in the house at his own word—practically without question? Why did he take those trousers? "I'm trapped," mused the Duke, "or else—"

"Or else he's no more a butler than I am Mr. Ridder. How do I know what he is? There's a lot of mighty valuable junk in this house." It was with that thought in his mind, and himself imagined in a new and exciting role, that His Grace of Hollywood finally turned the other cheek on an Irish linen pillow slip, and dropped off to sleep.

The trousers were beside his bed when he awoke.

And all that cinema nonsense had evaporated from his mind.

Just "a lucky break." A good night's rest in a warm, dry house, whose owners had suddenly dashed off to Europe, leaving the establishment to a son who happened to be unknown to the servants.

"If I belonged in a house like this—"

He squared his shoulders, and sauntered down the carpeted stairs. No need of finishing the sentence. Already, he felt a new dignity; a new, stiffening self-respect. The trousers were neatly pressed, and "Good morning, sir," said the butler, as he entered the breakfast room.

There was nothing "make shift" about the meal. Evans had been to town for cream, and bacon, and bread, and the Duke's courage rose with every sip of the steaming coffee.

"What's this?" he inquired, his eye falling up an envelope at his plate.

"A letter for your mother, sir," Willets replied. "It came after she'd left the hotel, and Evans got it when he went back for some things he was to bring out here. He forgot it last night, sir. Mrs. Ridder expected some mail from the employment agency, and places like that. She said you was to open it, sir."

Barry hesitated.

He could feel a chilly something in the butler's gaze.

Sooner than return the gaze, or evade it, he opened the envelope.

A hundred dollar bill dropped out.

"Well, sir!" exclaimed the butler, any doubts he may have entertained lost in his surprise.

"Well," echoed the Duke, with that new courage born of the steaming coffee.

"It's Got to Go," Fumed the White-Haired Gentleman.

fee. "Well, and likewise good. I can use this."

"Yes, sir," said the butler. "A little more coffee, sir?"

"Thank you," assented the Duke. "And just one more piece of toast."

Alone in the cheerful breakfast room, with the cheerful sunshine streaming down outside, he read the letter.

"Dear Mother:

"I'm returning the money. I can't keep it, and I can't go to Southampton. I'm sending this special delivery, so you'll have time to get rid of the servants, if you decide not to open the house. For your sake, I hope father improves at Bad Nauheim, but I don't want anything that comes from him, and I shan't write again. Thanks, all the same. John."

The Duke picked up the envelope again.

It had been posted the previous morning in New York, and there was no special delivery stamp.

"Well," he remarked; "Santa Claus is certainly worked overtime for me!"

Back with the toast and coffee, Willets inquired, "Anything important, sir?"

"The letter?" asked the Duke, as though that had been farthest from his present thoughts. "No. I'll send it to Bad Nauheim when I write, and keep the money until my mother returns."

"What time shall you want the car, sir?"

"The car?"

"For luncheon, sir. It's a fairish long walk to the village."

His Grace reflected. It was a long walk to the village. It was an even longer walk to Montauk Point. And, apparently, there was no possibility of overplaying his luck. Why should not he ride to Montauk in comfort—or, at least, to within a few miles of Montauk—and disappear there, instead of at Southampton?

"I might take a drive," he said.

Out of sight of the house, he took the precaution of burning that letter from "John." The truth was that the Duke's uneasiness over that hundred had nothing to do with the fear of being caught. He had never stolen anything before. "I'll return that money from Montauk," mused the Duke. "I don't want to be hooked for robbing the mails."

Life had never been dull for him—or for his father. "Keep moving!"—that was the old man's slogan. And that was all he ever kept. Barry's memories began in Pittsburgh. Stranded, Francis Gilbert had tutored there.

"Spoiling good longshoremen," he called it, "because their papas are rich." From one of the longshoremen, Barry had discovered that he should have a mother. The old man had never mentioned it, so his son raised the question. "I lost her," his father said.

"How?"

"In Algiers. You were born there."

It was years before Barry was old enough to put the two things together. "Did she die when I was born?" he asked then, and got no answer. This was in San Sebastian, where the old man worked for an engineering concern. Soon afterward, they pushed on to England, and short-lived prosperity. Barry went to school, for the first time, and found that he had learned more from his father than the other lads from their professors. That was fortunate, because the schooling lasted only a year before Barry—fifteen now—was taken to India. "I can't stand counting houses," his father had told him. "They've given us a berth in Calcutta."

It wasn't an upper berth, and it was in another counting house. "I met a fellow today," the elder Gilbert announced, "who's got something to do with the diamond mines. I think we'll go to Johannesburg." They didn't, because, a week later, the old man found another friend who suggested Manila. From there, it was only a step to Canton, and the tea business, and a shorter step to Hong Kong, where Francis Gilbert came home one night with a fever, and died the next morning.

Barry had begged a clerkship in Hong Kong, and then worked his way to San Francisco. On the boat was a movie director. "You've got a great smile," he told the youngster. "I think I can use you." Hollywood, then, and one studio after another. Youth, and looks, and the ingratiating grin helped a lot there. And Barry learned a lot, too. How to wear clothes, and how gentlemen behaved—or Hollywood thought they behaved—in a drawing room. He was earning two hundred dollars a week, sometimes, when a wallet vanished from a coat thrown over a table "in the set." The Duke knew who took it. She was a poor little thing, though, and desperate, and His Grace kept his mouth shut. They couldn't pin it on him, he said, and they didn't, but there were no jobs after that.

And so he'd come East. Ankle-deep in the sand, that morning at Southampton, he kept thinking of the letter he'd just burned. And of his own mother. He had missed her all through his childhood, watching the other boys with their mothers, or, at school in England, getting ready to go home to them. "I lost her," the old man had said, and never mentioned the matter again. Had she died in Algiers, in childbirth, or merely grown weary of wandering, and decided to stay somewhere with someone? "I'd like to find her," the Duke thought.

At noon Evans brought the car.

"Do you know where we're going?" asked the Duke.

"Yes. I'm taking you for a ride."

Almost surly, thought the Duke. And it had a sinister sound, that phrase.

"You want to get lunch, don't you?" the chauffeur added, quickly.

"I want to see the end of the island. We can eat anywhere."

The Duke sank back into the cushioned seat. It gave him a curious sense of importance—being driven like this. Along the highway they sped.

The car was slowing down now, and, looking ahead, His Grace saw another limousine drawn up at the side of the road. Evans threw out the clutch, and then put his foot on the brake.

A husky young fellow in uniform was standing in front of the other car. Beside him was a spare, white-haired gentleman. And, framed in the car's doorway, ready to alight, stood a pretty girl.

"Stop," said the Duke, quite super-erogatorily, since they had stopped.

She was the prettiest girl he had ever seen, the Duke decided. He had made the same decision many times before, but this time he felt it would be final. Tall and slim and dark, dressed in an ensemble of hunter's-green tweed, with a top coat to match, and a tiny felt hat perched upon her sleek black hair, she looked, somehow, like a thing turned out by an entirely perfect machine—trim, and polished, and built for speed. Her eyes were gray, the Duke was to discover later, and wide, and a little cold. Her nose was a straight line from her forehead, and her lips were bright red against the pale ivory of her face.

"Can I do anything for you?" inquired the Duke.

He was standing before her now, and her glance took him in, calmly, appraisingly, before she answered.

"No, thanks."

And with that, Barry felt, she erased him from the landscape.

"Yes, you can," said the white-haired gentleman. "That is, if either of you knows anything about a car. My chauffeur doesn't."

"We'll be glad to try," the Duke said, cordially. "Have a look at it, will you, Evans?"

Suddenly, Evans walked over to the open hood.

"It's the ignition," the other chauffeur told him.

"Start her up."

"She won't start."

The two men began fussing with the engine.

"It's got to go," fumed the white-haired gentleman. "I haven't had a bite since breakfast, and I'm due in New York at five o'clock."

"Hungry myself," said the Duke.

DR. JAMES W. BARTON

Talks About

The Weight Reducing Drug

WHEN a drug will reduce weight without the individual having to cut down on his food or increase his exercise, naturally it is going to become very popular. The fact that skin eruptions, digestive disturbances and even death in a few cases has occurred from its use has apparently not lessened the demand for the drug.

Dr. W. W. Boardman, San Francisco, in the Journal of the American Medical Association states,

"I have used the drug with success in a number of cases. At the present time dinitrophenol is quite generally accepted as an adjunct or help in the treatment of overweight, although among the more conservative physicians it is used cautiously and with a certain degree of fear. I myself used it in several cases with satisfactory results. However, in the last two weeks I have seen two cases of rapidly developing cataract in relatively young women and have had reports of four similar cases."

The first case used dinitrophenol for 20 months, reducing her weight from 237 to 161 pounds. Within one week after the dimness of the eyes appeared only light and dark could be distinguished.

The second case used dinitrophenol for eight months, reducing her weight from 217 pounds to 165. Dinitrophenol was discontinued for eight months and the weight went up to 198 pounds.

The drug was given again for two months, when an eye examination showed beginning cataracts. Vision failed rapidly so that within a month there was almost complete loss of vision in the right eye.

Other Cases Similar.

The third case used dinitrophenol from time to time for eight months with a satisfactory loss of weight. However her vision became dim and within 30 days had progressed to almost complete blindness and with fully developed cataracts.

The fourth case had been taking dinitrophenol without a physician's supervision, for several months. She also has shown rapidly developing cataracts.

Doctor Boardman comments as follows:

"As the occurrence of cataract at this age is extremely rare and the one common factor in all four cases has been the use of dinitrophenol, it would certainly seem that until the question of the relationship between the dinitrophenol and the rapidly developing cataracts in young women is settled, the drug should not be used."

In the same issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association Drs. Warren D. Horner, Richard Bar Jones, and W. W. Boardman, San Francisco, report three cases of cataracts following the use of dinitrophenol. The case were women aged, fifty, thirty-seven, and forty respectively.

They report that the age of the patients and the absence of any other cause suggest dinitrophenol as the cause of the formation of the cataract and loss of vision.

However just how dinitrophenol causes the "drying" process in the lens of the eye is not definitely known but is being investigated by these physicians. The over heating of all the body tissues, loss of water in the tissues, the lack of some food in the patient's diet, are all under consideration as causes.

Advise Discontinuance.

"Under the circumstances, further use of dinitrophenol should be discontinued pending further study of its effects upon the body, aside from the reducing of weight."

Now, the above information and comments do not mean that dinitrophenol passes out of the picture as a weight reducer. As the Journal quite properly states that as dinitrophenol has not been standardized some of it may contain impurities. Also the cataracts may have resulted from an unbalanced diet which often occurs when the food intake is reduced greatly.

Thus it has not been established whether the cataracts occurred because of the dinitrophenol or because of some other undetected cause.

The point then is that dinitrophenol as at present manufactured and used must be considered a "dangerous" drug.

X-Ray Shows Up Appendix

Patients may sometimes wonder why their physician recommends an X-ray examination of the stomach and intestine when the trouble is likely to be in just one or the other and not in both. They feel that the physician should be able to locate the trouble exactly and not put them to the expense of the X-ray examination reasonable though it may be.

As a matter of fact, when there is trouble in the abdomen, in addition to the X-ray of the stomach and intestine, an X-ray examination of the gall bladder by means of a dye and the X-ray is really what the physician would like to have done to enable him to learn more as to the cause of the symptoms.

By VIRGINIA VALE

NOWADAYS there is one sure way for an executive of a motion picture company to find out whether his company considers him really important or not. If he's a big shot, he's not allowed to fly. That's a hardship when a man is commuting from Hollywood to New York and back again, of course—but hardship or not, they take trains.

Only last week three of Metro's big men wanted to get from New York to Hollywood in a hurry, and planned to fly; they had done it so often that it meant no more to them than walking down the street; they knew all too well that flying was no more dangerous than any other means of transportation. But at the last minute somebody got wind of their plans. The resulting argument was hot and heavy—but in the end they went by train.

One of them didn't really object, however. He was Howard Dietz, chief of publicity and advertising.

"That's all right with me," he remarked. "I'll win a thousand dollars at bridge on the way out."

There's just no stopping them—I mean these girls who are as determined now not to be blonde as they once were to be as blonde as possible.

Jean Harlow started it, of course, by turning "brownette," and now we have Carole Lombard, Alice Faye and Joan Bennett following her example.

They seem to feel that it will help them to get more serious roles—quite forgetting that Ann Harding, who is naturally so blonde, has been doing pretty well with serious roles for a long, long time.

On the other hand, Marion Talley (ex opera star and farmer, now working hard in pictures) has turned blonde for her first screen appearance. If you have seen her, or seen photographs of her in the old days, you're going to be surprised at her appearance; she has lost a lot of weight, and it is a big improvement.

Those Major Bowes amateur stage units have been so successful that Bob ("Believe It Or Not") Ripley is going to have some of his own; the first will begin its tour somewhere in New England the last of April. It will probably include these acts: Little Jennie, a thirty-pound midget; Grace Murphy's quintuplets, five ballet dances averaging three hundred pounds each; a concert pianist who plays—and well—with his elbows; John Tio and his talking bird; and a man who makes music with leaves. Bob himself, encountered at a party after the opening of Ringling's circus, was trying to curb a strong desire to go out with them himself.

Frank Parker, who bobs up on so many radio programs, is going to make another picture; his first, you'll recall, was "Sweet Surrender." He's been on the stage, so he's prepared for a movie career.

Speaking of his stage career, the other day Fifi D'Orsay came to a rehearsal of her radio show with a picture of the cast of "Greenwich Village Follies of 1925." Willie Howard glanced at it, then at Parker, and said, "Frank, there's a fellow in this picture who looks exactly like you."

"Looks like me?" retorted Frank. "It is me. I was a chorus boy."

I wish you could meet Bette Davis. She's an overwhelming young person, because she's so devastatingly frank. No matter what you ask her she'll answer it, and intelligently too—with no regard for whether the movie moguls will like what she says or not. Now some interviewers use rather brutal tactics.

That doesn't work with Bette Davis; she doesn't get angry, she just tells the truth, with a pleasant smile.

"How do you get along with your husband?" someone asked her recently. "There are reports that you've separated."

"Oh, we fight," she replied. "It's my fault; sometimes I simply have to fight, and then nothing will stop me."

ODDS AND ENDS . . . John Boles doesn't want to be tied down to one company any longer; he's going to free lance . . . Fredric March felt the same way; thought he was making too many costume pictures . . . So the first one he signed up for as a free lance was "Mary of Scotland" with Katherine Hepburn . . . Paramount is going to give us "Beau Geste" again, in color this time, with Gary Cooper in the leading role . . . "A Message to Garcia" is a fine picture . . . Jane Withers does fine work in "Gentle Julia" . . . Shirley Temple got another raise the other day . . . Practically all the movie companies are trying to sign up Charles Boyer, who's already under contract . . . You'll see him before long in "The Garden of Allah" . . . And in color . . . Margaret Sullivan's broken arm is holding up two pictures . . . Myrna Loy will be teamed with Warner Baxter in "To Mary, With Love"; remember them in "Broadway Bill?"

Oldest Temple-Fort Found by Explorers in the Orient

A prehistoric architect's conception of a combined citadel and temple of worship, antedating by nearly three centuries the earliest biblical reference to temple fortresses, has been uncovered by archeologists at Tepe Gawra, in northern Mesopotamia, it was announced at the University of Pennsylvania. The discovery and excavation of the massive walled "round house," a circular building of sun brick unique among all prehistoric finds, climaxed the seventh season of work at the "Great Mound" 15 miles northeast of Mosul by a joint expedition of the university museum and the American Schools of Oriental Research.

Scientists Know

If it was found out 100 years ago, the scientists are now sure of it.

GAS, GAS ALL THE TIME, CAN'T EAT OR SLEEP

"The gas on my stomach was so bad I could not eat or sleep. Even my heart hurt. A friend suggested Adierika. The first dose I took brought me relief. Now I eat as I wish, sleep better and never feel lumpy."—Mrs. Jas. Filler.

Adierika acts on BOTH upper and lower bowels while ordinary laxatives act on the lower bowel only. Adierika gives your system a thorough cleansing, bringing out old, poisonous matter that you would not believe was in your system and that has been causing gas pains, sour stomach, nervousness and headaches for months.

Dr. H. L. Shoub, New York, reports: "In addition to intestinal cleansing, Adierika greatly reduces bacteria and colon bacilli."

Give your stomach and bowels a REAL cleansing with Adierika and see how good you feel. Just one spoonful relieves GAS and chronic constipation. Sold by all druggists and drug departments.

This Makes Laxative Pleasant to Take

People who know Feen-a-mint don't have to "take themselves" into taking a laxative when they know they need it. They like Feen-a-mint, the delightful chewing gum laxative. For just as soon as you start chewing Feen-a-mint, its stomach-settling mint brings a clean, fresh taste to the mouth. As you chew out the laxative ingredient which is absolutely tasteless, the flow of digestive juices is increased. The laxative is mixed with them and carried into the system gently. Feen-a-mint doesn't gripe, nauseate or cause upset, and it is non-habit-forming. It passes through the stomach and into the bowels so scientifically that your action is wonderfully easy and thorough. Try the pleasant, refreshing Feen-a-mint way the next time you need a laxative. Doctors prescribe its laxative ingredient for both children and adults. Sold on money-back guarantee. Generous family size package 15c and 25c.

Watch Your Kidneys!

Be Sure They Properly Cleanse the Blood

YOUR kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as nature intended—fail to remove impurities that poison the system when retained.

Then you may suffer nagging backache, dizziness, scanty or too frequent urination, getting up at night, puffiness under the eyes, feel nervous, miserable—all upset.

Don't delay! Use Doan's Pills. Doan's are especially for poorly functioning kidneys. They are recommended by grateful users the country over. Get them from any druggist.

Mr. Herman Couser the director.

SOCIAL CLUB.

The Social Club met with Mrs.
Henry Muennink on Tuesday for an afternoon of bridge. Bowls of varicolored sweetpeas lent a colorful spring atmosphere to the rooms. At the conclusion of the games Mrs.
Reilly Carle held high score among members and Mrs. Ed Finger among guests. Mrs. Martin Zinsmeyer cut highest and Miss Lucy Rothe lowest score.

A delicious refreshment course was served to the following: Mesdames Reilly Carle, Louis Carle, Jr., Martin
Zinsmeyer, Alfred Zinsmeyer, John
Zinsmeyer, Chas. Finger, Ed. Finger, James Finger, Volney Boon, and Misses Grace and Lorine Zinsmeyer and Lucy Rothe.

SILAS SMIDGE A BIG HIT.

A "howling success" was the comedy presented last Thursday evening
in the Parish Hall by the Parish Players under direction of W. E. Albrecht. "Silas Smidge of Turnip Ridge", his friends and foes, kept the audience in an uproar for a few hours of delightful comedy. The following took part: Alta Finger, Cornelia and Sarah Koch, Lorine Zins-meyer, Marie Britz, Sara and Ethel Rothe, Hilmar J. Koch, Howard
Rothe, Martin Ney, Wilfred Fohn,
Thomas and Edward Finger.

SHOWER.

Miss Isabel Zerr, a bride-elect, was honored with a lovely miscellaneous shower Sunday afternoon at the Parish Hall by Mesdames R. R. Carle, D.
W. Scott, James Finger, and Miss Corine Zerr. Eighty guests registered in the bride's book.

The hall was lovely in an array of roses and sweet peas. The honoree was escorted to her place of honor beneath a rainbow by little Misses Patsy Lou and Mary Alice Zerr in dainty rainbow-colored frocks, carrying umbrellas to match, while Miss

Wendy Dubray played Lohengrin's Wedding March.

Little Miss Elizabeth Nester gave a toast to the bride, after which the many gifts were presented to the honoree.

Delicious chicken salad, saltines, cake, and iced tea were served by the hostesses. The plate favors were sweet peas.

D'HANIS WINS PRIZE IN BATTLE OF FLOWERS PARADE.

The army wagon entered in the Battle of Flowers Parade in San Antonio Friday to represent D'Hanis received second prize for out-of-town entries. This may be considered an honor when one realizes the number of towns represented in the parade,
and is a compliment to Mrs. Currin and those who assisted in carrying out her plans.

The following, in appropriate costume, rode in the wagon or were on horseback behind it: Mrs. Herman Couser, Misses Doris Nester and Bertie Mills, Mr. Ferdinand Nester, Mr.
Carl Rüdinger, Corporal Beater, Mr.
Ford Sam Houston, Ferd Rock, John
Tondre, Madeline Boog, and Johnny Nester.

D'HANIS SCHOOL NEWS.

As a result of the election in April,
Messrs. Ed Meyer and H. W. Butts
were chosen as trustees.

At school board meeting the following teachers were re-elected:
Superintendent V. D. Currin, Principal
Herman Couser, Mrs. J. J. Love,
Mrs. Herman Couser, and Miss Carrie Langfeld.

Subsequently Mr. Currin was elected superintendent of the Dilley High School and, upon his acceptance, the board met again to elect Mr. Couser to succeed as superintendent at D'Hanis. While patrons of the school regret losing Mr. Currin, they have confidence in the ability of the newly elected administrator.

THREE P. T. A.'S DISCUSS PLANS.

Representatives of the three local parent-teacher associations met at the D'Hanis High School Wednesday afternoon to discuss plans for selling refreshments during the Pioneer Ball of May 26. It was decided that the three organizations operate one stand and divide the proceeds. The committees represented D'Hanis P.
T. A., St. Anthony's Community
Club, and Seco Community P. T. A.

TRADES DAY.

The result of the last Trades Day,
the 12th, held in D'Hanis were as follows: $10.00, Anthony Zerr; $5.00,
Mrs. W. A. Weyand; $1.00 each,
Lupe Rodriguez, Mrs. Don Scott, Mrs.
Henry Nester, Gus Rothe, and Mrs.
Oscar Rothe.

NOTE.

I should like to express my appreciation to the D'Hanis Parent-Teachers' Association, Miss Josie Rothe,
Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Booz, the D'Hanis
merchants, Mrs. Joe J. Lutz, Mr. Joe Carle, and all the others who so generously gave their time, efforts and money to make our entry in the Battle of Flowers Parade a success—
and without whose help, nothing could have been accomplished.

BIG ENTERTAINMENT PROGRAM PLANNED FOR UVALDE HONEY FESTIVAL.

One of the most outstanding programs of entertainment ever prepared by a Southwest Texas town is being planned by committees for the Uvalde County Honey Festival in Uvalde on May 7 and 8, and preparations are being made to accommodate several thousand visitors during the two-day affair.

One of the features of the program will be a rodeo, in which riders and ropers from throughout the entire section will participate. J. H.
Mundino of Uvalde, and Earl Sellers
of Del Rio, are in charge of this event, and state that no expense will be spared in making the event one of the best ever held in a town of that size. An attractive premium list has been arranged for each of the two days. Events will include broncriding, calf roping, tie down, saddle bronc riding, steer wrestling and steer riding. There will be a breakaway calf roping if time permits. Efforts are also being made to arrange some of the State's outstanding ropers.

A parade on the morning of the opening day, headed by the Sul Ross College Band, will be the greatest Uvalde has ever seen. Joe Carper, who is in charge of the decorated floats, announced this week that approximately 25 entries already had been made and others are coming in almost daily. Substantial cash prizes will be offered for the most outstanding civic float and the latter group will include entries by clubs or organizations and which do not carry commercial advertising.

A polo game golf tournament in which teams from all surrounding towns have been invited to participate, dances each evening at the Kincaid Hotel and other forms of entertainment will be additional features. Admission will be charged only to the rodeo, polo game and dances. All other events of the two-day program are free.

Exhibits in the Kincaid Hotel will be among the many attractions for visitors as well as local people, according to Fred W. Hall, chairman of exhibits.

The exhibits, with their respective chairs, are as follows: Honey,
Joan Broussard; wool and mohair,
Guy Haby; Texas antiquated relics,
Mrs. Green Martin; and art, Miss Catherine Lewis.

The honey exhibits are to be in many of the Uvalde business houses and also a central exhibit in the Kincaid Hotel. This will enable every visitor in Uvalde during those days
to be reminded that this is the center of the production of the world's finest honey.

The wool and mohair display
should be one of the most educational ever shown in Uvalde. The Associated Wool Industries of New York have offered their assistance and attractive displays of the process
wool goes through after leaving the range country. Similar articles of mohair in the possession of Horners'
will add greatly to the educational value of the exhibit.

Many relics of Texas history have been accumulated and will also be displayed in the hotel during the days of the festival. Various articles from Fort Inge, near Uvalde, and from the old San Bruno mission site
of Montell, will be very interesting to all who see them. Other articles of interest to the local people and visitors will also be displayed.

The work of some of Uvalde's local artists will be exhibited in the ball room of the hotel. A number will be those of Mary Hornby Lea, J. R. Shaw and others.

On the evening of the first day, a grand pageant in which more than 500 school children and citizens will participate, and which will depict the growth of Texas through the various episodes will be presented.

The climax to the evening's program will be the crowning of Miss Wilma Russell as Queen Bee of the Honey Festival. Her court will include nine princesses, named for the principal flowering shrubs from which bees gather honey.

the event. A stage will be erected in the bed of the Leona, and seats will be arranged along the banks of the stream, beneath huge old oak trees.

Public speaking, at which Hon.
Robert Lee Bobbitt, associate justice of the Fourth Court of Civil Appeals, San Antonio, will be the principal speaker, band concert by the Sul Ross Band and W. Lee O'Daniels and his "Hillbilly Boys", also will be parts of the opening day program.

Committees arranging various details of the program are offering a rare opportunity to some couple on the second night of the program. A public wedding will be held, immediately following the Beauty Parade,
and any couple who desire to get married at that time may file their application with Mrs. H. H. Carmichael, chairman of the committee.
All names submitted will be kept secret. Should more than one couple submit their names, a secret committee will be selected to pick the fortunate couple, and the names of the couple will not be announced publicly until the night of the wedding. The fee will be provided without cost,
no charge will be made for the officiating minister, and in addition many beautiful gifts will be presented by the merchants of the city.

Another attraction of the closing night's program will be the selection of Uvalde's representative to the Fort Worth Frontier Follies.

The people of the United States
do not want any system that cripples

is, will they find themselves saddled with such a system before they real-

DELIVER US FROM STOUT TARIFFS.

The practice of using the taxing power of a state to prevent the sale of legitimate products within its borders is bad business.

Several years ago Iowa threatened to tax cottonseed oil shortening out of its borders in order to expand the market for its own lard. Recently a number of Southern States have passed laws that place a prohibitory tax on oleo made from foreign oils.
And even more recently Wisconsin
to promote its own dairy interests has taxed all oleo at a rate that will drive it out of its borders. States that produce the products that go into oleo, such as cottonseed oil, animal fats, etc., are now retaliating by cancelling orders for made-in-Wisconsin goods.

National farmers have just about stifled foreign trade, and yet our states, learning nothing from international trade experience, seem determined to isolate themselves with tariff walls. When will people learn that they can't sell unless they buy? And when will they learn that their taxing power can't be used to outlaw legitimate products without bringing upon themselves retaliatory taxes against their own products?—The Progressive Farmer.

Robert Helmers who lives near Garfield in DeWitt county recently sold a litter of pigs that averaged 225 pounds each at five months and eight days of age. These pigs were raised on sudan pasture supplemented with skim milk and corn and were finished for 38 days on a self-feeder with shelled corn and a protein supplement of tankage and cottonseed meal, according to Mr. Helmers.

Her teeth, he thought, were like the stars.

Because they were so bright,
Like Venus, Saturn, Neptune, Mars,
They come out every night.

IMPORTANCE OF VEGETABLE PRODUCTION IN TEXAS.

By A. D. Jackson.

In recent years the scientific study
given to our food supplies has greatly emphasized the value and importance of vegetables and each person must now have three servings daily.
One of these must be leafy vegetables like turnips and other greens
and in this class come asparagus, English peas, sweet peppers, lettuce,
etc. Another serving must be of the starchy vegetables. These are Irish potatoes, parsnips and fresh roasting ears. The third serving must be of such crops as rutabagas, turnip roots,
beets, okra, onions, carrots, egg plant,
and fresh shelled peas or beans. Then here is a fourth class known as fruit vegetables which includes tomatoes
and rhubarb and two servings per day will do for this class. For a family of five, plantings must be made for two pounds per day of each of these four classes if we meet the ordinary needs that can be profitably supplied by vegetables.

This ration of 600 pounds per person per annum applied to the whole population of Texas calls for a million and a half tons worth nearly fifty million dollars, or about $100 average market outlet for each of the half million farms in Texas to say nothing of the potential market for Texas vegetables outside the state.

Home gardens are more important in those sections that do not grow vegetables for market, and it is estimated that a family of five needs a garden of one-half acre.

Due to out of state demand and demand from sections within the state that do not produce a constant and adequate supply, commercial vegetable production has developed to large proportions. Shipments of more than 60,000 carloads are made each year to say nothing of the enormous volume of truck shipments.
These bring the growers around $50,000 annually and cost the consumers probably $200,000,000. At any rate, vegetable production offers a market for more than $200 per farm or $100,000,000 annually. The greatest volume of vegetable shipments from Texas farms comes from winter vegetables from the Southern and coastal areas. In the Lower Valley, cabbage, cauliflower, carrots, beets, spinach, and onions, are prominent in the winter crops, while to-matos, roasting ears and string beans figure heavily in fall and spring crops. In the Winter Garden section, practically the whole list of vegetables are grown for market and the spinach shipments from the Crystal City section are a large part of the spinach produced in the United States. Spinach shipments last from November to March or later, and are followed by spring vegetables of which tomatoes are the most important. In the coastal area, greens, onions, cabbage, and for that matter,
the whole list of fall, winter and spring vegetables are grown for market. Irish potatoes are not produced for sale as a cured product in Texas,
but the fancy prices usually received for new potatoes induce considerable production in the Wharton area and in several sections of Eastern Texas
as well as in Southern Texas. Sweet potatoes are grown widely for home use and to some extent for market, especially in Eastern Texas. The spring crop is produced over a wide area of the eastern half of the state, centering around Jacksonville and in irrigated sections in all parts of the state, the tomato crop is important.

The Texas Experiment Station has experimented in vegetable production for 48 years, and many of the results of studies in vegetable production. The first substation was located at Beeville to study fruit and truck crops and the second was located at Troup for the same purpose. The vast commercial shipments of South Texas and East Texas were greatly stimulated and their development assisted by the two stations.

The whole system of nearly 20 stations in every important region now gives attention to securing better knowledge of vegetable production, but specializing in vegetable growing
are the Lower Valley Station at Wes-laco, the Winter Garden Station at Winter Haven, and the Wichita Valley Station at Iowa Park.

SUGGESTIONS TO THE RAISER.

By V. M. Couch.

Hogs that are of uniform size
weight will fatten best.
Stinting the brood sow often results in stunting the pigs.
Have the little pigs eating vefore starting to wean them.

Use some air-pellets get wet in ashes when the pens get wet and up the moisture.
Do not turn pregnant sows green patch of rye. Any change of feed and too much stuff cause abortion.

Have been sent away for or that have been on exhibi-
should be kept in separate pen-
at least two weeks.
Before farrowing the sow nutritious bone-developing After farrowing they require that will stimulate milk pro-
but avoid too rich food.

To avoid having runts in the leave the pigs that are under-
with the brood sow for a week
two after the other pigs have taken away from her.

Two litters from a sow has most satisfactory for me. I so as to have the first litter in March, then when the pigs are six or eight weeks of age
again for a fall litter.

Look out for lice on the pig any are found, prompt should be taken to rid them of parasites. Swine, old or young not thrive or do well when
by lice.
The writer has often been why there are not more hogs bred. My experience with breed has been that the pig breed is healthy, vigorous, ac-

very gentle to handle, pos-
a fine looking hog. If a Male strong breeders. If a Male or boar is bred to any other
the offspring will generally
